LENNOX & ADDINGTON LIBERALS HOLD THEIR ANNUAL MEETING.

G. W. Kyte, M.P., The Speaker

On Saturday last the Liberals of Lennox and Addington held their annual meeting in the Town Hall, Napanee.

The business meeting and election of officers was held in the morning at 10.30 a.m., President Frank Wartman presiding. Several projects of interest to the party were discussed and the following officers were elected:

President—M. S. Madole.

Vice-Pres.—F. S. Wartman.

Sec'y.—B. F. Davy.

Treas.—Carleton Woods.

The Executive Committee were re-elected.

In the afternoon the Town Hall was filled with an interested audience, principally farmers, who listened with great attention to the rousing address delivered by Mr. Geo. W. Kyte, M.P., for Richmond, N. S. The speaker of the day was to have been Dr. Michael Clark, who was unable to be present through ill health. Vice President, F. S. Wartman opened the meeting with a few words explaining the unavoidable absence of Mr. Clark and introducing Mr. Kyte to the audience.

Mr. G. W. Kyte declared that the Liberals in Parliament were determined to continue the fight against the Government's Mackenzie and Mann aid proposals at every stage in the progress of the legislation now before the Commons. He intimated that the criticisms of the Government's deal with the railway promoters would be put in concrete form in a series of clear-cut amendments, which would place every member in the House on record in regard to the various specific phases of the whole agreement.

One of the main amendments foreshadowed by Mr. Kyte was in regard to requiring Sir William Mackenzie and Sir Donald Mann to pledge their personal fortunes as multi-millionaires in security for the new forty-five million bond guarantee in addition to the $280,000,000 of public aid already granted. Another Liberal amendment would be along the line of insuring the economical and honest application of all moneys raised on the bond guarantee towards the actual completion of the Canadian Northern system. This would involve the letting of contracts on specific terms at the lowest figures obtainable, instead of, as at present, merely trusting to Mackenzie, Mann & Company to perform the work at whatever prices they liked without the existence even of any definite contract with the Canadian Northern Company, as has been the case hitherto. Mr. Kyte touched on the lead-

DOXSEE & CO. MILLINERY

We are opening to-day a choice lot of New Millinery suitable for spring and summer.

The artistic note is strongly pronounced in most of the hats and there are very few, if any, shapes which are too extreme to be generally becoming and to appeal to the taste of the most discriminating wearer.

The use of Taffeta and Moire in both piece goods and ribbon has certainly been revived to greater honors than ever before, they are shown in all colors.

The underbrim trimming is a new feature of Flowers, Osprey, Smart Feather Mounts, Stick-Ups and Wing Trimmings, all being considered very good.

We would also draw your attention to our Children's Hats.

Lovely New Blouses in sizes from 34 to 42. Come and see them.

served a term of imprisonment for breaking windows at the War Office, presided at the suffragette gathering.
She alluded to the scenes at Buckingham Palace on Thursday, when 57 suffragettes, including Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, were arrested at the park gate, and declared that both the royal name and the royal office had been disgraced.

The speaker announced that quite a number of contributions had been received following the recent activities of the militants. One Glasgow woman sent $5,000.

BILL GOES TO LO

Home Rule Passes British C
mons by Majority of 77.

Unionists Refuse to Debate Me
Without Further Information and End of Long Struggle C

Suddenly—Defeat of Maste Shakes the Government.

LONDON, May 26.—By a vo
851 to 274, a majority of 77,
House of Commons yesterday s noon read a third time the Home Rule Bill and passed the lought measure on to the Hou Lords, where another effort wi made by means of an amendin to bring the act into shape, v will secure it the good will o
cl. ses of Irishmen.

The end of the struggle came suddenly, the Unionists refusin debate the bill without furthe formation as to the Government intentions in regard to the pro amending measure.

Premier Asquith lifted a corn
the veil, but though Andrew E Law, leader of the Opposition, at ted that the Premier's words we conciliatory as usual, he hasten add that Mr. Asquith had not reading under the circumsta would, he said, be futile and ri lous. He added:

"Let the curtain ring down on contemptible farce. It is only the of an act and not of the play.
Government can carry the through Parliament, but the con ing act of the drama will be in country, where an appeal to the ple will not end in a farce."

Mr. Law then remarked that the Government was unable to o a seat in Parliament for a memb
the Cabinet, meaning Mr. Master Chancellor of the Duchy of Lat ter, an appeal to the people was far off.

After a brief speech by Pre Asquith, in which he defended Government against the charge o noring the rights of the minority redressing the balance of power between the parties by means of Parliament act he explained tha was introducing an amending bil
because he thought that the Home Rule measure was bad or perfect, but because he was an for peace.

The vote was then taken and announcement of the figures sho
a majority of 77 for the bill bro out a great demonstration by the tionalists and the Liberals. As man they rose from their seats cl ing and waving hats and hand chiefs.

The division was taken strict party lines. The followers of Wil O'Brien abstained from voting.
O'Brien expressing the view that Premier's action was not str

Eugene Howling, station agent for the West Shore Railway, at Tappan, N.Y., was shot and killed early yesterday by two men who tried to rob the safe in his office.

Keweenaw's experiment with daylight saving through moving the clocks forward has not been a success and the retail merchants recommend a return to the old system on June 1st.

Dr. A. P. Lechrop, assistant professor of Physiological Chemistry in Columbia University, New York, has been appointed professor of Physiological Chemistry in Queen's University.

Henry Cavin, 17 years of age, who was shot in the head when Mrs. Juanita Griffith tried to knock a potato from his head with a rifle in the theatre on Tuesday, died yesterday in Lynn, Mass.

The Cobalt Grand Trunk express, which left Toronto at 8.30 Wednesday night, was derailed near Trout Creek, at four o'clock yesterday morning. The passengers were shaken up, but no one was injured.

SATURDAY.

The 57 suffragettes arrested on Thursday in London created so much disorder in court yesterday that the hearing was adjourned.

The bye-election in the County of Jacques Cartier, the seat vacated by the late Hon. F. D. Monk, will likely take place this summer.

While Joseph Bateman of Rawdon Township was rolling a field his horses ran away, he was thrown off the roller, and had several ribs broken.

An unusual drop of over three feet in the normal depth of the St. Lawrence has alarmed shipping authorities at Montreal. The depth is now 32 feet 11 inches.

News was received yesterday of the accidental drowning in the Fraser river, B.C., of Vincent Cullaton, aged 30, of Galt, who was in the employ of the Dominion Bridge Co.

Three brothers named Crobuhlik, aged 17, 15 and 11, living on a farm near Ord, Nebraska, were killed by lightning while they were standing in the doorway of the barn.

Lavie Girgasetti, an employee of Johnston Bros., contractors for the Lake Erie and Northern Railway, was instantly killed yesterday, being run over by an engine near Brantford.

royal name and the royal crown had been disgraced.

The speaker announced that quite a number of contributions had been received following the recent activities of the militants. One Glasgow woman sent $5,000.

"Some day an exasperated crowd will break into a procession of militants. What will then happen to you women nobody knows at present. You have to thank the police for being alive. You owe them a debt of gratitude."

Magistrate Hopkins of the Bow street police court thus addressed a suffragette who had applied for a summons against an unknown man, who, she declared, had struck her on the face when the crowd rushed the suffragette meeting in Hyde Park on Sunday afternoon, and the police came to the women's rescue.

Apparently all that is needed, in the opinion of some observers, for the suppression of the militants, is the withdrawal from them of police protection.

HAMEL STILL MISSING.

Steady Search Kept Up For Airman Who Disappeared.

LONDON, May 26.—Hope for the safety of Gustave Hamel, the daring British aviator, has almost been abandoned, and it is feared he was drowned in crossing the channel.

Hamel left Le Cretoy, France, for Hendon, shortly after eight o'clock Saturday morning, and no word of him has since been received from any quarter. His course lay across the English Channel, and the distance of the flight was about 100 miles.

Torpedo boats and hydroplanes went all day Sunday searching the channel for signs of Hamel's aeroplane, but failed to locate it or any sign of the aviator. During the search two naval hydroplanes were wrecked at Dover by the rough sea, but a rescue was effected by pilots.

Made Attempt To Wreck Train.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., May 26.—Wreckers are suspected to have loosened the rails on the C.F.R. track 19 miles west of here yesterday morning, causing a wreck which for hours blockaded the tracks. Robbery is supposed to have been the motive of the wreck. An official inquiry is under way.

Under the provisions of the present act the bill becomes law at this stage, as it had already passed through all its stages in House of Commons in two separate sessions, and the vote of the House of Lords therefore has no final effect.

The House was seething with excitement from the moment the Speaker took the chair. Members of various parties indulged in loud bursts of cheering when their respective champions entered the chamber while at the same time mocking derision was shouted from the opposite benches.

Mr. Gannon, the Unionist who Saturday defeated C. F. G. Macman, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, in the bye-election at Ipswich met with such a uproarious welcome on his introduction that he appeared glad to escape from the limelight.

The Rt. Hon. James Lowther, Speaker, took an early opportunity of applying balm to the sores left by the violent incidents of Thursday last. He frankly admitted that he should not have used the expression he did when he asked Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, whether he approved of the disorderly demonstration by the Unionist members. The Speaker appealed to Premier to give the House some information regarding the bill to be introduced after the passage of Irish Home Rule Bill for the amendment of that measure, so as to remove some of the objections of the people of Ulster.

Joe Martin To Contest Seat.

LONDON, May 26.—(C. A. P. Press.)—An interesting bye-election expected in London early next month. Joe Martin, member for St. Pancras, called a meeting of association on Friday, when it was decided he should resign his seat and offer himself for re-election as Independent Liberal and Labor candidate.

His resignation has followed the adoption of R. L. Reiss as the official Liberal candidate because Martin stood against the Government in Marconi division in the House of Commons.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Practically nothing may be recovered from those who lost relatives or baggage in the Titanic disaster, as a result of a decision yesterday by the Supreme Court.

The court held that the liability of the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company against the $13,000,000 in claims against it as owner of the Titanic was limited in the suits in the United States by the American limited liability law of 1851 to the statute salvage recovered and the freight passage money, received on the Titanic's voyage.

The Rule Passes British Commons by Majority of 77.

Unionists Refuse to Debate Measure Without Further Information Regarding Amendment Proposals and End of Long Struggle Comes Suddenly—Defeat of Masterman Shakes the Government.

LONDON, May 26.—By a vote of 274, a majority of 77, the House of Commons yesterday afternoon read a third time the Irish Home Rule Bill and passed the hard-fought measure on to the House of Lords, where another effort will be made by means of an amending bill to bring the act into shape, which will secure it the good will of all sections of Irishmen.

At the end of the struggle came quite suddenly, the Unionists refusing to vote the bill without further information as to the Government's intentions in regard to the proposed amending measure.

Premier Asquith lifted a corner of the veil, but though Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, admitted that the Premier's words were as complimentary as usual, he hastened to say that Mr. Asquith had not told him anything. To discuss the third reading under the circumstances, he said, he felt to be futile and ridiculous. He added:

"Let the curtain ring down on this empty farce. It is only the end of the act and not of the play. The Government can carry the bill through Parliament, but the conclusion of the drama will be in the lobby, where an appeal to the people will not end in a farce."

Mr. Law then remarked that when the Government was unable to obtain a majority in Parliament for a member of the Cabinet, meaning Mr. Masterman, in favour of the Home Rule Bill, an appeal to the people was not off.

After a brief speech by Premier Asquith, in which he defended the Government against the charge of ignoring the rights of the minority and of upsetting the balance of power between the parties by means of the Home Rule Bill, he explained that he was introducing an amending bill not because he thought that the Irish Home Rule measure was bad or incorrect, but because he was anxious for peace.

A vote was then taken and the result showed the figures showing a majority of 77 for the bill brought a great demonstration by the Nationalists and the Liberals. As one after another they rose from their seats cheering and waving hats and handkerchiefs.

Ruttan Gives Up to Police on Minister's Advice.

Nearly Starved and Frozen After His Hiding In the Bush, Slayer of Daughter and Son-in-Law, Only Regrets That He Did Not Kill Two Others Before He Was Captured—Posse Cut Off His Retreat.

GRAVENHURST, May 26.—Contrary to police expectations and to his threat that he would never be taken alive, William Ruttan, the Muskoka bushman and trapper, who, on Wednesday morning, shot and killed his daughter, Mrs. Alfred Coutermanche, and Geo. Coutermanche, at their home at Housey's Rapids, quietly surrendered to Inspector Greer, of the provincial police, and Constable Fielding, of Bracebridge, at his home at nine o'clock Saturday morning.

Half famished, his clothes in tatters, and his face and hands torn by the heavy bush of the district, the murderer presented a pitiable appearance when taken in hand by the police. Through Friday's heavy rain-storm, Ruttan lay concealed in the bush, and he told his wife Saturday morning, that once, when his pursuers were within twenty-five yards of him, he was forced to swim the Buck river to escape detection. Though he was soaked to the skin, and the raw air brought on a heavy frost Friday night, Ruttan was forced by the presence of three watchmen

Joe Martin To Contest Seat.

NDON, May 26.—(C. A. P. C.)—An interesting bye-election is held in London early next week. Joe Martin, member for East Finsbury, called a meeting of his constituents on Friday, when it was decided that he should resign his seat and himself for re-election as an independent Liberal and Labor candidate.

His resignation has followed the decision of R. L. Reiss as the official candidate because Martin voted against the Government in the main division in the House of Commons.

SHINGTON, May 26.—Practically nothing may be recovered by who lost relatives or baggage Titanic disaster, as a result of decision yesterday by the Supreme Court.

The court held that the liability of the Oceanic Steam Navigation Co. for the $13,000,000 in claims for the Titanic is limited to the amount of the insurance in the suits in the United States by the American limited liability law of 1851 to the statute of 1851 recovered and the freight and money, received on the Titanic voyage.

Though he was soaked to the skin, and the raw air brought on a heavy frost Friday night, Ruttan was forced by the presence of three watchers on his house, to lie in the bush but a few hundred yards from his home, all night. At five o'clock the watchers were themselves forced by the cold air to seek shelter in Henry Cook's residence and the murderer crept into the shelter of his barn, within a stone's throw of his house. After half an hour in the barn Ruttan risked everything and crawled through the cellar window into his home, where he ate ravenously. While he was warming himself at the stove, Provincial Detective Greer, Constable Fielding and three other armed men returned to resume their vigil on the house and the murderer's escape was cut off.

His wife said that it was primarily the message of their minister, the Rev. Findlay Crowther, which persuaded her husband to surrender. "Mr. Crowther told me to tell my husband it would be far better for him to surrender to the law, and I did."

Ruttan says his only regret is that he did not succeed in killing his son-in-law, Alfred Coutremanche, and Henry Cooke, a neighbor.

FRANCES KOSSUTH DEAD.

Son of Great Hungarian Patriot Was 73 Years Old.

BUDAPEST, May 26.—Francis Kossuth, son of the great Hungarian patriot, died here yesterday, aged 73. He had been an invalid for many months, and his death did not come as a surprise.

In January last, during a crisis in his illness Kossuth was married on his sick bed to Countess Benyorsky, widow of his life-long friend. Such had been the wish of Count Benyorsky, made on his deathbed, and Kossuth and the countess, who intended to marry in March, hastened the nuptials when Kossuth's illness took a turn for the worse.

Francis Kossuth took his father's place as leader of the Hungarians soon after Louis Kossuth died in 1894. Up to the time of his illness Francis Kossuth led his countrymen, in their political struggles, with vigor and much success.

CONSISTORY AT ROME.

Pope Pius Creates Thirteen Cardinals and Confirms Bishops.

ROME, May 26.—At a secret consistory held at the Vatican yesterday morning Pope Pius created 13 new cardinals. A number of bishops from various countries also were confirmed in their sees.

At the same time official announcement was made of the creation of Mgr. Belo, Patriarch of Lisbon, as cardinal. His name had been reserved "in pectore" at the consistory of 1911.

The ceremony, which was accompanied by the brilliance usual on such occasions at the Vatican, was preceded by a short allocution, after which the names of the new cardinals were announced as follows: Mgr. Louis Nazaire Begin, Archbishop of Quebec, Canada; Mgr. V. Guisasola Y. Menendez, Archbishop of Toledo, Spain; Mgr. Domenico Serafini, Assessor of the Congregation of the Holy Office; Mgr. Della Chiesa, Archbishop of Bologna, Italy; Mgr. John Cernock, Archbishop of Esztergom, Hungary; Mgr. Hector Irnee Sevin, Archbishop of Lyons, France; Mgr. Francis Von Bettinger, Archbishop of Munich, Bavaria; Mgr. Felix Von Hartmann, Archbishop of Cologne, Germany; Mgr. F. G. Piff, Archbishop of Vienna, Austria; Mgr. Philipp Giustini, Secretary of the Congregation of the Sacraments; Mgr. Michael Lega, Dean of the Tribunal of the Rota; Mgr. Scipio Tech, Assessor of the Consistorial Congregation; Rt. Rev. Francis Alden Gasquet, President of the English Benedictines.

The Pontiff was surrounded by all the members of the Sacred College living in Rome and by those who are now here, including Cardinals Gibbons, Farley and O'Connell.

The Pope appointed Cardinal Francis Della Volpe to the office of chamberlain, in which position he will direct the affairs of the church during the conclave.

Cardinal Diomede Falconio, formerly apostolic delegate in Canada and the United States, also was raised to the rank of chamberlain.

The allocation of the Pope was a strong appeal for political and social peace through the restoration of religion and the influence of the church.

Germans Watching Mediation.

BERLIN, May 26.—The German Foreign Office, while watching with great interest the progress of the Mexican mediation conference at Niagara Falls, and hoping that it will be successful in averting war, declares it has no positive information which would enable it to foreshadow the result of the meetings.

An impression, it was stated, had been created in German official circles by the latest news from Mexico that the Government of Provisional President Huerta would hardly be able to maintain its existence much longer.

VITAL FORCE

Disease germs are on every hand. They are in the very air we breathe. A system "run down" is a prey for them. One must have vital force to withstand them. Vital force depends on digestion—on whether or not food nourishes—on the quality of blood coursing through the body.

DR. PIERCE'S

Golden Medical Discovery

Strengthens the weak stomach. Gives good digestion. Enlivens the sluggish liver. Feeds the starved nerves. Again full health and strength return. A general upbuilding enables the heart to pump like an engine running in oil. The vital force is once more established to full power.

Year in and year out for over forty years this great health-restoring remedy has been spreading throughout the entire world—because of its ability to make the sick well and the weak strong. Don't despair of "being your old self again." Give this vegetable remedy a trial—Today—Now. You will soon feel "like new again." THE $45,000,000 AL- LIANCE.

HOW THE BORDEN GOVERNMENT AND MACKENZIE AND MANN
ROUNDED UP THE CONSER-VATIVE MEMBERS TO SUP-PORT THE BIG DEAL FOR THE TWO MILLION-AIRES.

The scene around the House of Commons when the first vote was taken last week on the Government's scheme to give Mackenzie and Mann $45,000,000 more of assistance at public expense showed how determined are Mr. Borden and his colleagues that the two millionaire railway men shall get the money. It showed, too, the closeness of the alliance between the Government and Sir William Mackenzie and Sir Donald Mann.

Every Government supporter who had been absent from Ottawa and could possibly be reached was rushed back for the vote. All through the evening Government whips kept constant watch over the Government members. The drag net was thrown out everywhere. No Conservative was allowed to escape, save Mr. R. B. Bennett, of Calgary, and Mr. W. F. Nisde, of Kingston, who had manfully declared that they could not support their party in "proposals which are in the interest of railway contractors and not in the interests of the people" and were standing by their guns.

Mackenzie and Mann did everything in their power to help the Borden cause in 1911. Mackenzie and Mann would throw themselves into the battle on behalf of the Government in the next election in return for the $45,000,000 bond guarantee. Because of these things the Ministers were bound that every possible vote in their control should be mustered to give the railway magnates proof of the Government's friendship.

But the Ministers and the Government's whips were not busy alone.

Imperial union. Moreover, Mr. Millen also said, "the suggested Imperial squadron seems premature. Australia might in the future detail ships for service with such a squadron, but her first duty is to place her fleet and its associated organization on a thoroughly sound foundation."

Australia, then, continues steadfast in the determination to carry through the policy of a local navy, built in Australia as far as possible, manned by Australians and maintained by Australia. The Commonwealth believes that this policy is vital to Imperial defence and Imperial union. Australia does not believe that it is either necessary or wise to contribute Australian ships for service in an Imperial squadron entirely under the control of a body which is in nowise responsible to the Australian people.

Australia, it should be remembered, first tried the policy of contribution. Having given that policy a trial the Commonwealth abandoned it as unsatisfactory and entered upon the provision, and maintenance of a local navy. Now comes the official declaration of Australian belief that this latter policy is vital to Imperial interests. New Zealand, too, having tried the policy of contribution has abandoned it for the policy of a local navy.

That policy which was found unsatisfactory by Australia and New Zealand however, is the policy which Premier Borden and his associates are determined to force upon Canada. Contribution and centralization are the objects they have in view. To serve the ends of political expediency the Premier has repudiated his earlier speeches in favor of a local navy and adopts a policy which has been condemned both by Australia and New Zealand. To-day he stands opposed to a policy which Australia declares is vital to Imperial defence and Imperial union.

THE LIBERALS AND THE C.N.R.

The Opposition Would Have the Country see the Railway Constructed but not the way Borden proposes.—If the Country Gives More aid the Country Should Control the Road.

While the Liberals in Parliament are opposing the Government's scheme to give Mackenzie and Mann a bond guarantee of $45,000,000 they are opposed to national aid for the Canadian Northern if aid is needed. They are united in holding that the road must not be allowed to go down, that the railway must be completed in the interests of the Dominion.

safeguarding provisions which should properly have been included in it. According to statements tabled in the Commons during the discussion of the proposed $45,000,000 guarantee some $30,000,000 have already been expended on this British Columbia section. Moreover, a further outlay of about $23,000,000 is required to bring the section to completion so that altogether the construction of this part of the Canadian Northern system, a part which is being constructed under conditions for which the Borden Government is responsible, will cost more than $50,000,000.

All that the Canadian Northern now requires to complete its transcontinental system, Parliament is told by the Government is $45,000,000. It is clear, then, that the present situation is the result of the construction of the British Columbia under the conditions created by Mr. Borden and his colleagues. As a plain, straightforward matter of fact, so far as the responsibility for the present situation may be laid at the door of a political party it must be laid not at the door of the late Liberal Government, but at that of the present Conservative Ministry.

LABOR AND THE $45,000,000 DEAL.

Alphonse Verville, M.P., (Former President of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress Refers to the Proposed aid to Mackenzie and Mann.

"I want to go on record as being against this proposition," declared Alphonse Verville, the member for Maisonneuve, in speaking last week in the Commons of Premier Borden's proposal to give to Mackenzie and Mann a further bond guarantee of $45,000,000. For a term of years Mr. Verville held office as president of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress. To-day he sits in Parliament as a Labor member.

In his speech of last week Mr. Verville was clear-cut and emphatic on two points. He strongly opposed the plan to pledge the country's credit further for the benefit of Mackenzie and Mann and he was strongly in favor of public ownership of Canadian railways.

"I have heard, as has every member of the House," he said, "that Mackenzie and Mann are worth millions of dollars. If there is no reason more than another why I object to Mackenzie and Mann coming to this House it is because of this get-rich-quick society. They are responsible for the much talked of coal strike on Vancouver Island. It has not been mentioned in this House before but every member knows that this famous strike was started in the mines of Mackenzie and Mann. If they are so rich, why could they not grant the reasonable demand of the men? Why have they not shown some justice in that matter?"

"Every time Mackenzie and Mann come before this House it seems to me that they have more friends than any other company. On two occasions I have heard gentlemen in this House state that they have been indirectly threatened by Mackenzie and Mann. What power is behind their threats? Is it the mighty power of their money or something else?"

Mr. Verville pointed out further that since Canada would be liable for the $45,000,000 represented by the proposed guarantee the passage of the Government's proposal was equivalent to placing a liability or mortgage upon every citizen of the Dominion. In return for this, what are the people to receive? They are to become minority shareholders in a company controlled by Mackenzie and Mann. Labor's re-

hope to avoid the discussion of naval question which would be called to take place if the 'service-with ships' policy were brought forward in the Commons, and a parliamentary review of its record on that question is one of the last things which Government wishes to be made.

What the Ministry proposes to do is to establish naval reserve companies in different portions of Canada and train men in seamanship, drill and preliminary naval exercises but without building any ships, the Premier and his colleagues clinging to their "Canada Can't" idea regard to shipbuilding. The policy will have several merits from the Government's point of view. For one thing, it will be acceptable to all Nationalists who have no objection to a naval service which does not men to sea. For another thing will be cheap, costing about $200 a year, and Hon. L. P. Pelletier, member of the Government, is on record as having commended in Parliament a naval policy which would be cheap. The scheme will also have some political advantage for the Government, since what money is spent may be expended in the local where it may be counted upon to do the most good for the party.

And best of all from the Borden point of view, the adoption of the scheme will give the Government

...in 1911. Mackenzie and Mann would throw themselves into the battle on behalf of the Government in the next election in return for the $45,000,000 bond guarantee. Because of these things the Ministers were bound that every possible vote in their control should be mustered to give the railway magnates proof of the Government's friendship.

But the Ministers and the Government's whips were not busy alone. All through the evening Sir William Mackenzie with a corps of his Canadian Northern aides went up and down the corridors seeing that the Government members were "keen" in line.

For the first time in the history of Canada there was the spectacle of lobbyists and party whips working in plain alliance in the corridors of Parliament to "round up the vote."

The Government and Mackenzie and Mann were out in the open working hand in hand. Sir William Mackenzie and his associates were "whippers in" for the Government. The result was that the Government was able to show one of the largest majorities of the session. Its followers were on hand in force to declare that Mackenzie and Mann, who have already received hundreds of millions from the people of Canada and have risked not a dollar of their own money in the Canadian Northern, should receive another $45,000,000 without pledging one iota of their own great wealth.

When the vote was announced the Government supporters—save Messrs. Bennett and Nickle—joined in a prolonged burst of cheering. They cheered themselves hoarse over the triumph of the "deal" and in so doing they supplied the one thing previously lacking to show their enthusiastic zeal in the cause of Mackenzie and Mann.

It was a happy night for the Government and for Mackenzie and Mann. As allies, they had won a victory. The "round-up" had been successful. Together they had driven all but two of the Conservatives into line behind the deal.

It was a great night for the allies, but what a spectacle for Canada when lobbyists and Government together whip into line behind such a deal a hundred men supposed to be representatives of the people!

THE NAVAL QUESTION.

Local Navies Vital to Imperial Defence and Union Says Australia—
A Hard Rap for Borden's Contribution Scheme.

"Australia," said Hon. E. D. Miller, the Minister of Defence for the Commonwealth, in an official statement issued last month, "is irrevocably pledged to, and will determinedly and consistently pursue, the policy of constructing and maintaining a local navy) on which she embarked by the Imperial Government's advice five years ago. She will not be deflected from her course.....since she regards the task she has undertaken as vital to the cause of Imperial defence and

While the Liberals in Parliament are opposing the Government's scheme to give Mackenzie and Mann a bond guarantee of $45,000,000 they are not opposed to national aid for the Canadian Northern if aid is needed. They are united in holding that the road must not be allowed to go down, that the railway must be completed in the interests of the Dominion.

But the Government which proposes to give $45,000,000 of assistance to Mackenzie and Mann decided upon its scheme without thorough investigation of the physical and financial condition of the railway and without investigation as to the methods followed by Mackenzie and Mann in the construction and management of the line. There are many reports as to those methods which indicate the desirability of a full inquiry. Reports as to the condition of the railway also give reason for an investigation before the company is granted more millions by the country. All that the Government has placed before Parliament in the way of information regarding the company and its affairs is contained in statements supplied by Mackenzie and Mann and in brief reports prepared by Government officials on the strength of an investigation extending over only a few days.

The Liberals are willing that aid should be given if it is needed to save the railway but they insist that there should first be a thorough investigation so that it may be made clear just what the state of the Canadian Northern is to-day. They believe also that if the Dominion is to put more money into the railway the Dominion should have control of the railway and should not be merely a junior partner in the firm of Mackenzie, Mann and Canada as Mr. Borden proposes. Surely, the Liberals are on solid ground in taking this position. But Mackenzie and Mann want neither an investigation nor a change in the control of the company, and the Government majority is determined that Mackenzie and Mann shall have their way.

WHERE RESPONSIBILITY LIES.

The Borden Government, Not Laurier, to Blame for C. N. R. Situation.

A favorite argument used by friends of the Ottawa Government in attempting to justify the Borden proposal to give Mackenzie and Mann a Dominion bond guarantee of $45,000,000 is to contend that conditions necessitate the granting of the guarantee and that those conditions have flowed from the action of the late Liberal Government in making possible the construction of the Canadian Northern system. The argument will scarcely stand examination.

It is true that it was under the Liberal Government that the Canadian Northern lines were extended from Manitoba to Edmonton and to Prince Albert. It is also true that in 1911 the Laurier Government took action which enabled the Canadian Northern to set about linking up its lines in the prairie provinces with railways in the east so that, on the one hand, the western lines "would have independent and competitive access to the eastern seaboard and the eastern commercial centres and, on the other hand, these commercial centres would have direct, independent and competitive access to the prairie west."

Leaving that side of the case for a moment, it is illuminating to look into the facts in connection with the British Columbia section of the Canadian Northern. The conditions which have surrounded its construction were created by the present Government under legislation which was enacted in 1912 and which lacked entirely the or something else?

Mr. Verville pointed out further that since Canada would be liable for the $45,000,000—represented by the proposed guarantee the passage of the Government's proposal was equivalent to placing a liability or mortgage upon every citizen of the Dominion. In return for this, what are the people to receive? They are to become minority shareholders in a company controlled by Mackenzie and Mann. Labor's representatives did not mince words in dealing with this phase of the case.

"It has been said," Harewood reports him as saying, "that we are going into partnership with Mackenzie and Mann. I, for one, do not want to go into partnership with those gentlemen because if they were absolutely honest I believe they would have put their own fortunes into this enterprise. We are told also that we are going to have forty per cent. of the common stock of this company. I have read enough of trusts and mergers and over-capitalization to know how much that is worth.....I would favor even a greater guarantee than this $45,000,000 providing we got control of the company. If it is necessary let us eliminate altogether Mackenzie and Mann. I want to go on record as being opposed to this proposition. I do not want to be charged by the people of this country with having gone into partnership with Mackenzie and Mann. I would rather go into partnership with anybody else than these gentlemen."

Mr. Verville, a Labor representative, a man whose whole life has been one of service to the cause of Labor, opposes the Government's plan to give $45,000,000 to two men who have already grown enormously wealthy out of the construction of a railway into which they have put none of their own money. He is opposed and rightly opposed, to making this country the junior partner in the firm of Mackenzie, Mann and Canada—to having the Dominion put up more money to add further to the wealth of men who have become multi-millionaires through their handling of Canadian affairs. Other Labor leaders and several Labor organizations have protested against this $45,000,000 deal. Resolutions of protest have been passed by Labor bodies in different cities.

But these protests from the workmen give Mackenzie and Mann no concern. They know that the Borden Government will give little heed to the views of Labor. It is Mackenzie and Mann and the corporation interests generally which have the ear of the Premier and his colleagues.

A NAVAL SERVICE WITHOUT SHIPS.

The Naval Policy Which Mr. Borden and his Nationalist Allies Have Devised—Will it Meet the "Emergency"?

To have a naval service without ships is the latest scheme of the Borden Government. The policy is not to be submitted to Parliament but is being brought into effect by the order-in-council method of government. By following this method the Ministers member of the Government, is in accord as having commended in Parliament a naval policy which would cheap. The scheme will also some political advantage for the Government, since what money is may be expended in the local where it may be counted upon to the most good for the party.

And best of all from the Borden point of view, the adoption of scheme will give the Government opportunity of making it appear something is really being done in way of naval action although it require many plausible words much exaggeration to convey the impression that anything worth while intended. Meanwhile, Canadians speculate as to whether or not service without ships will go very toward meeting the "emergency" which Mr. Borden has assured threatens the Empire.

JOHN LEGG'S PLAIN TALK

Made in an Advertisement He Put in the Paper in 1837.

Advertising in the Sun three-quarters of a century ago was worded more grotesquely than it is now in some respects. No big type was used, but advertisements hit the mark with its aid. It is to be doubted if soon the advertisements which appear then could get into print now, for were outspoken to a degree would offend modern susceptibilities. For example, here is an advertisement which appeared in the Sun of May 1837:

The Fog Peril.

One of the great conquests of science for human safety will be the discovery of some effectual means of dislodging every ship at sea the approach position of any other vessel which come near in a fog. So far the peril remains as deadly as it ever. In some respects the conditions change for the worse. The growth of commerce increases the number of ships which traverse the seas. Every water highway is more full-cupped, and the tendency is toward higher average speed. Nothing can be heard with sufficient distinctness and certainty as to distance and direction to meet the demands of safety. The best fog signals in use repeat fail to avert terrible disasters.—C. "Organotherapy" is an Old Medical System Which Has Been Revived.

Is it possible to provide the feeble-minded with more brain until they are normal? Wild though the possibility may seem to the lay mind, it has, nevertheless, been seriously discussed at the Congress of Medicine in Paris. Furthermore, experiments in the science which is known as "organotherapy" have already been attempted.

This science really consists of treating diseased organs with medicines made from similar organs. It is pointed out by medical experts that the building up or doctoring of one organ with extracts from a similar one was practiced 2,000 years ago, although, of course, in a very crude fashion. It is on record that patients suffering from an affection of any particular part of their system were given the same part of an animal to eat, with the idea of repairing the local waste and damage. Thus consumptives were ordered to eat sheep lungs, while for dyspeptics was prescribed a diet in which the stomach of calves ranked as the chief item.

In an address on the subject delivered by a widely-known Roumanian doctor, Dr. Iscovesco, he remarked that special importance is attach-

GERMAN RED TAPE

A Most Irritating Brand Is Used In the Postoffices.

SENDING A PARCEL BY MAIL.

Experience of an English Tourist Who, With Joyous Confidence, Undertook to Perform What Was Supposed to Be a Perfectly Simple Operation.

In all innocence and lightness of heart I set out one morning to send a small parcel to England from the town in Germany where I was staying. At the postoffice I was confronted by three booking office windows, each having a weird and formidable inscription over it. These inscriptions were not to be comprehended at a glance; so, not wishing to gaze up at them too long, I selected the least crowded window and handed over my parcel. It was promptly returned to me with a curt "Go to the next window!" It was just that window I specially wished to avoid, being the most crowded, but I waited my turn and then made another attempt. The official looked at me sternly.

"Have you the circulars?" he asked. "No," I replied faintly.

He handed me three circulars, for which I had to pay a small sum and which I was requested to fill up. Picking up my parcel, I sat down to study those circulars. They were covered with instructions, the language used was magnificent, and the effect was so overwhelming that I found it difficult to grasp what I was instructed to do. If my papers were not filled up accurately it was not from untruthfulness, but owing to my limited German vocabulary.

By the time I had described the parcel, the gross weight thereof in grams and kilograms, the gross value thereof in marks and pfennigs and given a detailed description of each article contained therein, with its separate weight and value, I felt like an old inhabitant of that postoffice. I had seen, as it were, generation after generation of stamp purchasers come and go, and still I remained. As to the weights, my idea of kilograms was about on a par with my knowledge of definite integrals. However, I did my best. I guessed at the probable weight of the parcel and divided the articles into it.

At length I came to the end, and, feeling like a candidate at an examination, I gathered up my papers and the parcel and went over to the window. After waiting my turn I handed over the papers. The official glanced at them, then at the parcel, and frowned.

"Did you weigh the articles?" he asked sternly.

"Ya-a-a!" I stammered.

"Then go home and weigh them again. You have put them down at half a ton!"

There was no help for it. With a sigh I gathered up my papers and went back to a secluded corner. After patiently reducing all the weights I again presented the papers. This time they were passed, and I was sent on to the next department, where I had to purchase and fill up another document. I was now getting into form.

Pinkham's Compound highly to all expectant mothers." — Mrs. E. WANDBY, 92 Logan Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

Consider Well This Advice.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for nearly forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Patriotism In Hayti.

Hayti, which is now again in one of its perennial revolutions, breeds a spirit of sensitive patriotism unknown in other countries. Some years ago a general in the Haytian army ordered an artificial eye in Paris. The maker executed the order to the best of his ability; but the eye was returned from Port au Prince, with a letter complaining that "the eye you forwarded me is of a tint that resembles the Spanish flag. I am far too patriotic to wear any colors but those of my own country." After ascertaining from the Minister of Marine, the colors of the Haytian standard, a scarlet and green eye was despatched, and this met with approval. —London Daily Chronicle.

The Order of Fools.

On Nov. 12, 1381, the Order of Fools was instituted by Adolphus, Count of Cleves. Members were not by any means idiots, however, for the word had a different meaning then. They were the prototype of our modern fraternal orders, doing a similarly benevolent work. Their insignia consisted of a mantle, upon the left shoulder of which was embroidered a jester, or fool, in cap and bells, yellow hose and silver vest. So these "cheery, useful jokers" had a bright, happy outlook upon life and

...as having commended in Parliament a naval policy which would be a political advantage for the Government, since what money is spent is expended in the localities where it may be counted upon to do most good for the party.

And best of all from the Borden point of view, the adoption of the measure will give the Government an opportunity of making it appear that nothing is really being done in the way of naval action although it will use many plausible words and exaggeration to convey the impression that anything worth while is being done. Meanwhile, Canadians can calculate as to whether or not a naval fleet without ships will go very far and meeting the "emergency", Mr. Borden has assured us that the Empire.

JOHN LEGG'S PLAIN TALK.

de In an Advertisement He Put in the Paper in 1837.

Advertising in the Sun three-quarters of a century ago was worded more picturesquely than it is now in some respects. No big type was used, but the advertisements hit the mark without aid. It is to be doubted if some of the advertisements which appeared in the Sun could get into print now, for they are outspoken to a degree which would offend modern susceptibilities. For example, here is an advertisement which appeared in the Sun of May 26, 1837:

Shoemakers—10 Kackmen Wanted.—A subscriber gives the highest city rates for good work and begs those who would fitch him of his stuffs to visit him. It would be an agreeable surprise to him if John Kemp, Thom-Pringle, Isaac Morgan and a few others would bring in the work they have so "forgotten" to return.

JOHN LEGG, 164 8th Avenue, New York, has trade supplied cheap and good. "Kackmen" seems to have gone out of use completely. It is not given in any of the modern dictionaries, but one of them has "cack, a baby's shoe," which it calls shoemakers' cant.

The same number of the Sun of May 26 of 8 Fulton street advertised that he wanted broken bottles, but he did not state his use for them. There were several advertisements for men to go on whaling voyages.—New York Herald.

The Fog Peril.

One of the great conquests of science in the last century has been the discovery of some effectual means of disclosing the approach of a fog. Every ship at sea the approach and the approach of any other vessel which may be near in a fog. So far the fog remains as deadly as it ever was. Some respects the conditions change for the worse. The growth of commerce increases the number of ships which traverse the seas. Every year the water highways are more fully opened, and the tendency is toward a further average speed. Nothing can be done through a dense fog. Nothing can be heard with sufficient distinctness to ascertain as to distance and direction to meet the demands of safety. The best fog signals in use repeatedly to avert terrible disasters.—Cleveland Leader.

...suffering from an affection of any particular part of their system were given the same part of an animal to eat, with the idea of repairing the local waste and damage. Thus consumptives were ordered to eat sheep lungs, while for dyspeptics was prescribed a diet in which the stomach of calves ranked as the chief item.

In an address on the subject delivered by a widely-known Roumanian doctor, Dr. Iscovesco, he remarked that special importance is attached to the treatment of anaemia by this method. "The old treatment with iron," he declares, "was never absolutely satisfactory, while if a lipid extract of blood corpuscles is administered to patients the corpuscles rapidly multiply and the anaemia disappears."

Probably the most startling suggestion made by the doctor was that of curing the feeble-minded by this method. This physician held that so long as organotherapy worked so well along other lines, it stood within reason that it would work well with the feeble-minded. By giving them a lipid extract of grey matter, an extract of the brain, it ought to increase their mental faculties and in time give to them normal brain.

Of course, if this is possible, it will be one of the greatest wonders and most valuable things in modern or ancient medicine.

Origin of Stammering.

A new theory as to the origin of stammering is set forth by C. S. Bluemel in a book on that subject. It is usually said that stammering is due to spasm or to incoordination of muscles, but this is no explanation, as it does not tell what causes the spasm or the incoordination. According to Mr. Bluemel, stammering is the result of transient auditory amnesia—forgetfulness of the sound of words—which produces the secondary conditions of mental confusion and fear, these being intensified in some cases by autosuggestion. The initial cause may be slight and limited to early life. It may even lessen and disappear, while the secondary effects remain as acquired habits.

America.

Amerigo Vespucci's letters about the new world were made the basis of a book (about 1507) called "Cosmography," by a certain Waldseemüller, who suggested that, as Amerigo was the discoverer of this "fourth part of the world," it should be called after him. The name took and, first applied to South America, was given later to the entire western continent. James Bryce remarks: "The series of incidents by which the name of a Florentine adventurer was given, first to a continent he probably did not discover and then to another which he never saw, is as curious as anything in geographical history."

Why Firemen Hurry

Little Ross, aged seven, had been around the corner inspecting the fire station. He came home to tell his mother of what he had seen there. He said:

"And, mamma, even if they are just in the middle of sweeping the floor, they drop the broom and rush off to the fire, and even in the night time when they are in bed if the bell rings they jump up and dress and go to the fire, 'cause if they didn't do that when they got there the fire would be all out."

...Then go home and weigh them again. You have put them down at half a ton!"

There was no help for it. With a sigh I gathered up my papers and went back to a secluded corner. After patiently reducing all the weights I again presented the papers. This time they were passed, and I was sent on to the next department, where I had to purchase and fill up another document. I was now getting into form, and this paper was soon dealt with.

Then, with my heart beating fast, I handed over the parcel. It was once more returned to me. The official said he could not take it in that condition—it was insecurely made up.

Now, if there is one thing upon which I pride myself it is upon the neat way in which I turn out a parcel. So, smothering my indignation as well as I could, I assured him that it would be all right, that it was perfectly safe and that there was nothing in it which was breakable. He repeated firmly that it was insecure and that he could not take it. So I sadly collected my papers and the parcel and went home to dinner.

I spent all the afternoon trying to purchase a cardboard box of exactly the right proportions and some waterproof cloth to wrap round it. I next procured a stick of sealing wax and a German seal, and by the time I had finished that parcel looked as if it were prepared to travel to the north pole.

It was now getting toward evening, and I was feeling wearied after my day's work, so I besought my brother—a willing, guileless youth—to take it to the postoffice. He took it so innocently that my conscience reproached me for not having given him a word of warning. He was a long time gone, but that was to be expected. When I saw him come in my heart sank in despair.

"They won't take it like this," he said cheerfully.

I groaned and asked:

"Why not?"

"There's not enough sealing wax on it."

"Not enough sealing wax?" I cried incredulously.

"No. You must put a blob wherever the string crosses and wherever there's a knot."

In desperation I seized the sealing wax and worked away until I had used it to the last speck and the parcel was one intricate mass of string and wax. Then I conveyed it once more to the postoffice. It was now almost closing time, and the officials were in a hurry to get away. I handed over the papers and the parcel without a word.

Two minutes later I walked out of the postoffice with joy in my heart and a smile of satisfaction on my face. I had sent the parcel off.—London Family Herald.

For the Boy's Sake.

"I want my son to enjoy his boyhood, because he will be a child only once."

"That's all well enough, but there's no use in making oneself a slave to one's children."

"I don't make myself a slave to one's children. I find my greatest enjoyment in giving them pleasure."

"Then why did you kick so strenuously when your boy asked you for a dime to pay his way into the picture show?"

"Sh-sh! I don't want him to overhear. I know he'd be sorry if he spent the money to see that show. I was there myself this afternoon."

Saw Her Chance.

"No man shall ever kiss me except my future husband," said the girl as she was about to leave the gate.

"Suppose I agree to be your future—"

"Why, then, I'll kiss you," she said eagerly. And she did.

Her mother was informed that he had proposed, and the old lady called on him the next day to arrange matters, and before he knew it he was eternally booked. It was a very mean advantage, but a bird in the hand is worth two on the garden gate.

Most Wonderful Clock.

The most wonderful clock in the world is in St. Petersburg. It has ninety-five faces. It indicates simultaneously the time of day at thirty points on the earth's surface, besides the movement of the earth around the sun, the phases of the moon, the signs of the zodiac, the passage over the meridian of more than fifty stars of the northern hemisphere, and the date according to the Gregorian, Greek, Mussulman and Hebrew calendars. It took two years to put the works together.

Sensitive.

"She's getting rather plump."

"Yes, but don't you dare to tell her so. She nearly sued her husband for a divorce on account of her plumpness."

"Why, he isn't to blame."

"No, but she heard that he was complaining that he had an elephant upon his hands, and she thought he meant her, and he only meant a house he was trying to rent."

Louis of the Oysters.

Louis des huitres (Louis of the oysters) was the nickname given to Louis XVIII. of France because he lived in high style and especially enjoyed oysters. In French this nickname is a fairly good one, as his official name was Louis dix-huit (the eighteenth), which sounds very much like des huitres.

FUN TO THE AUDIENCE.

But to the Actors Such Mistakes as These Spell Tragedy.

Among the amusing misadventures of the stage—that is amusing to the people “in front”—is that which concerns a very promising but exceedingly nervous young actor who since has become one of the brightest ornaments of the stage. He was playing the first actor in Hamlet and proceeded quite bravely until he reached these lines:

“Anon he finds him
Striking too short at Greeks.”

Here, for the first time, his nerve or memory failed him; and, to the great amusement of the house, he delivered himself thus:

“Anon he finds them
Striking at two short Greeks.”

with the result that, instead of speaking at least another 70 lines he incontinently stopped short, quite unable to utter a word. His companions tried to prompt him, but to no purpose whatever; and when “Polonius”—after giving him a full two minutes to pull himself together—was compelled to go on with his next line:

“This is too long,”

the audience shrieked and held its sides with laughter.

Such a very seasoned actor as the late Thomas Mead, one of the leading members of Sir Henry Irving's company, was often a victim to verbal lapses, as when, in Macbeth, instead of saying, “Cool it with a baboon's blood,” he convulsed the audience by saying, “Cool it with a dragon's blood,” and one of our greatest actresses once converted an idyllic love scene into farce by changing, “Let us seek some cosy nook,” into “Let us seek some nosey cook.”

Even dead men on the stage have their embarrassing moments, as a certain actor who recently played the role of a poacher in a melodrama discovered. The poacher had been shot by a rival at the end of the second act, and the curtain should have fallen as he dropped dead. As ill-luck would have it, however, it stopped short when a few feet from the stage, and opposed all efforts to lower it further. The audience began to titter; the situation became tense and painful, when the dead man saved it. Rising wearily, he said, in a sepulchral voice: “Alas! there is no rest even in the grave,” and glided spectrally off the stage.

At a performance of Julius Caesar, some time ago, “Marc Antony” made a ludicrous mistake when “Caesar's” dead body was brought in. Apostrophising the fallen hero in passionate eloquence, while the onlooking citizens were overwhelmed with grief, he grasped, as he thought, the face cloth and began slowly to draw it back. At this moment a sepulchral whisper came from the other end of the corpse, “This end, you idiot!” But “Antony” was too grief-stricken to pay any heed. He pulled away at the cloth and disclosed, to the startled audience, “Julius Caesar's” boots.

FIRE LOSS A MILLION.

Cleveland Lumber Yards Fall Victims to Conflagration.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 26.—One million dollars' damage has been done by a fire which broke out in the business centre of Cleveland shortly before 10 o'clock Monday night.

The fire broke out in the yards of the Fisher & Wilson Lumber Co., supposedly started by tramps smoking, and spread with lightning-like rapidity. Inside of half an hour the fire was beyond control. It spread across the Cuyahoga river and caught the Cleveland Elevator Co.'s grain elevator.

From there the flames spread to the lumber yards of Martin & Barress, which are situated directly beneath the Central Railway viaduct. At 11 o'clock the flames ate into the viaduct, part of which collapsed at midnight.

Entire Garrison Executed.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Mexico City despatches to diplomatic sources here Saturday, reported that when Constitutional troops captured Tepic several days ago they put to death the entire Federal garrison of 300 officers and men. These despatches also confirmed reports that Gen. Obregon's forces were hastening on to Guadaluajara and there was great apprehension among foreigners in that city. Bandits from the mountains were reported to be menacing the city.

Four Killed In Gang Fights.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The police and the district attorney's office yesterday are investigating seven homicide cases reported within the 36 hours up to midnight Sunday night. Four of the seven victims are dead and the other three are not expected to live. The dead lost their lives in gang fights. According to the police, this is the largest number of homicide cases in the same length of time in many years.

Basket Ball.

A friendly game of basket ball played on the school court at worth last Saturday afternoon between the girls of the Tweed Tamworth Continuation school resulted in a victory for the school girls by a score of 21-2. Tamworth girls had never so match played before and knew little of the game. They were classed by their opponents on point. The latter played a fast skillful game. A number of spectators from both villages witnessed the game and everyone was pleased with it none more so than the parents teachers who have watched the girls with drooping shoulders and ing health come back to strength vigor and who have watched slow lethargic minds become quick keen through such training as One particularly interesting feature was the good feeling shown. There was no elation over victory on part of the Tweed girls and no resentment over such a thorough experienced by the Tamworth. The former were there to play game. Winning was of no importance. The latter were there to the game, and they know a great more about it now than they week ago. The line up was as follows:

FIRE AT MARLBANK.

Marlbank village suffered a severe loss by fire on Monday evening, May 19, the grist mill, saw mill, sheds and other buildings on the property being totally consumed, creating a property loss of about $3,000, on which there was no insurance. The fire was discovered within a few minutes after the men had left the mill for supper, and notwithstanding the efforts of the large crowd which quickly assembled and in the absence of any fire-fighting appliances, the blaze, fanned by a brisk breeze, soon licked its way into the frame structures and beyond control.
Realizing that the destruction of the property was inevitable, the fire fighters turned their attention to saving the buildings in the immediate vicinity, which had repeatedly taken fire from flying embers, and by heroic work were successful in confining the blaze to the mill property. The only theory advanced as to the origin of the fire is that a spark from the boiler had gotten between the sheeting of the building while the machinery was in operation, and smouldered for some time before breaking out. The farmers in the vicinity will be greatly handicapped by the loss of the mill as it will necessitate their travelling to Tweed, Tamworth or Forest Mills, a number of miles distant, with their grists. The owner of the property,
Mr. Florence Penn, has the sympathy of the entire community in the financial loss he has sustained, and it is currently reported that an effort will be made sufficiently encouraging to persuade him to have the mills rebuilt.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, May 25.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 125 cars, comprising 2494 cattle, 831 hogs, 86 sheep and lambs and 339 calves.

Choice loads of steers sold at $8.30 to $8.50, with a few lots at $8.60; good to choice loads of steers and heifers at $8.15 to $8.30; medium to good at $7.80 to $8.10; common at $7.35 to $7.75; choice cows at $7 to $7.50; good cows at $6.50 to $6.90; medium cows at $6.75 to $6.90; common cows at $5 to $5.75; canners and cutters at $3.75 to $4.75; bulls at $6.50 to $7.65.

Short-keep feeders at $7.75 to $8; feeders at $7.50 to $7.75; stockers at $6.50 to $7.

Milkers and Springers. The run of milkers and springers were light, and sold at $55 to $100 each.

Veal Calves. Receipts were moderate, quality common and medium, and prices firm. Common calves at $7 to $7.50; medium at $8 to $8.50 and good at $9 to $9.50; choice calves at $10 to $10.50.

Sheep and Lambs. Receipts were exceedingly light, only 86 all told, and prices very firm. Heavy ewes and rams at $5 to $5.50; light ewes at $6.50 to $7.25; yearling lambs at $8.50 to $9; American yearling wethers at $9; spring lambs at $5 to $9 each.

Hogs. There were few Ontario hogs on sale, but there were over 500 northwest hogs on the market, the quality of which was good. Ontario hogs were quoted at $7.90 f.o.b. cars $8.25 fed and watered and $8.50 weighed off cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, May 25.—At the Montreal stock yards, west end market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending May 23 were: 1050 cattle, 500 sheep and lambs, 3100 hogs and 1200 calves. Offerings on the market this morning amounted to 800 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 1700 hogs and 550 calves.

In cattle the feeling continued firm and prices were unchanged owing to the small supplies. A number of carloads of pressed beef have been brought in of late direct from Toronto. Trade was fairly active, with sales of full carloads of choice steers at $8.25 to $8.50 and good steers of 1100 pounds brought $8, while fair stock sold at $7 to $7.50 per 100 pounds. An increased demand was reported for good butchers' cows and bulls. A stronger feeling developed in the market and prices for Ontario stock advanced 10c to 25c per 100 pounds over Wednesday. The demand for packers was good and an active trade was done, with sales of selected lots at $9.10 to $9.25, sows at $7.10 to $7.25 and stags at $4.55 to $4.65 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

The trade in small meats was fair and prices ruled steady. Yearling lambs sold at $8 to $8.50 and ewe sheep at $6.50 to $7 per 100 pounds, while spring lambs brought from $4 to $8 each, as to size and quality.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, May 25.—Cattle—Receipts, 1800; active and 15c to 25c higher: prime steers, $9 to $9.25; shipping, $8.25 to $8.55; butchers, $7.25 to $8.75; heifers, $7.25 to $8.50; cows, $3.35 to $7.50; bulls, $6 to $7.50; stockers and feeders, $6.75 to $8.15; stock heifers, $6.50 to $7; fresh cows and springers steady, $35 to $30.

LIGHTSHIP GOES DOWN.

New Canadian Craft Lost With Scottish Crew of 25 Men.

HALIFAX, N.S., May 26. — The battered hulk of the new lightship, Halifax No. 19, was found among the breakers on Liscomb Island, five miles from the mainland Saturday afternoon. She struck during the dense fog which has enshrouded the coast for several days and it is believed her crew of 25 Scotchmen are lost. Six bodies bearing lifebelts had been recovered up to Saturday night by the steamer Dufferin. Both lifeboats which the vessel carried were also found. A search of the little rocky island in the vicinity was made in the hope that some of the crew may have been able to get through the surf alive.

Word has reached the Canadian Marine Department here that the hull of the lightship was broken in two.

The ship was on her maiden voyage from her builder's yards at Paisley, Scotland, to take up her station off Sambro Ledges near Halifax harbor. Captain Macbeth and Chief Engineer McKenzie are the members of the crew known here. The men were shipped in Glasgow.

The Government steamers Stanley and Lady Laurier were ordered to search for possible survivors or for more bodies. Although the lightship was the last word in staunch steel construction and carried one 23-foot lifeboat and a powerful 24-foot motor launch, little hope is felt by the Canadian Marine Department that anyone of the crew escaped. Long rollers from the North Atlantic break over the jagged rocks with terrific force in the calmest weather.

The first intimation of the disaster was brought in by the Dufferin when she arrived with three bodies. She went back to Liscomb Island later in the day to continue the search and found another body.

THE CHINCH BUG.

The Experimental Farms' Branch of the Department of Agriculture has issued Entomological Circular, No. 3, entitled "The Chinch Bug in Ontario." This has been prepared by Mr. H. F. Hudson, Field Officer of the entomological service. In the United States the losses due to the ravages of the chinch bug, during the last sixty years, considerably exceeded $350,000,000. Fortunately no very serious outbreaks have, as yet, occurred in Canada, but the insect has established itself in Middlesex county in Ontario, and has been reported also from Nova Scotia. The Circular, therefore, is timely and discusses the methods to be adopted in order to control the insect. In 1912, an investigation of the infested area in Middlesex county was made by the above Field Officer, and the life-history of the insect, etc., was studied. In the Circular the information gathered during the investigation is given. Preventive measures, such as clean farming, rotation of crops, etc., are discussed as well as artificial remedies. Copies of the circular may be obtained free of charge from the publication Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Trollite.

Trollite, which is a very common constituent of meteorites, is generally considered to be the simple sulphide of iron, though the exact chemical composition is in doubt. This is usually in the form of nodules, plates or rods, and, decomposing readily during flight, leaves the remaining mass with unique markings.

INSPECTOR OF THE WEIGHING OF BUTTER AND CHEESE APPOINTED.

The Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, has appointed Mr. J. E. D. Gareau, "Inspector of weighing of butter and cheese", in accordance with the recommendations made by the Royal Commission which inquired into this question a short time ago.

Mr. Gareau is now ready to investigate complaints of excessive "short weights" or discrepancies between the marked weights of butter and cheese and the weights as found by the public weigher at Montreal. Cheese factory and creamery salesmen and receivers of butter and cheese, are requested to notify him at the Department of Agriculture, 223 Commissioners street, Montreal, Que., (Phone Main 4145) if they have any complaints to make of these articles.

The Inspector has instructions to keep in touch with the public weigher at Montreal, and in cases where he finds any evidence of excessive short weight it will be his duty to investigate without specific request.

Mr. Gareau is a graduate of the Burlington, Vt., and St. Hyacinthe Dairy schools. He has been a cheesemaker and an Inspector for the Dairymen's Associations of the Province of Quebec, and has also had many years experience in the cheese and butter trade. He will not act as a referee in the matter of quality.

IMPORTANCE OF THE REMOVAL OF MALE BIRDS AFTER THE BREEDING SEASON.

By W. A. Brown and J. H. Hare.

Eggs which have been fertilized constitute the greatest proportion of the inferior stock which, when examined, proves unfit for food. It is not necessary that these shall have remained for a time under a broody hen, a temperature of seventy degrees being, in itself, sufficient to cause the germ to commence to grow. If the heat is constant the development of the chick will continue, but if it ceases or is intermittent, putrefaction at once sets in and the egg becomes bad. On the other hand infertile eggs which are free from the active germ cell, do not, under ordinary conditions, deteriorate seriously.

Few farmers seem to realize these facts, and consequently very few make any effort to insure infertility. The impression prevails among many, that the presence of the male bird in the flock is essential to the production of a maximum number of eggs. This assumption has been proven, time and time again, to be absolutely without foundation.

Farmers and others selling eggs for market are recommended to kill off or dispose of the male birds after the breeding season. As a result of their remaining with the flock after June 1st, Canadian farmers lose each year at least a million dollars, through the presence of partially incubated eggs in the produce which is marketed. The fact that the best trade in many cities in Canada now offers the premium of from one to five cents per dozen, for non-fertilized eggs, suggests an additional financial consideration which but few can afford to overlook.

MILK PER ACRE.

If it may be assumed that the farm of the average factory patron is fairly well adapted to dairying, that the patron himself is inclined towards dairying, rather than, let us say, fruit growing, and that his cows are fairly good, then it will be of interest to note how the farm is made to respond to this dairy inclination.

There are frequently noticed yields as low as 250 pounds of milk per acre cultivated including pasture, but some good patrons obtain 750 and 800 pounds per acre. Even this is little enough, for there are plenty of authentic records of 1,100 and 2,100 pounds of milk per acre. It should not be extremely difficult to obtain more than this, even 2,500 or 3,000 pounds.

This latter figure is a long, long way ahead of the yields already mentioned of only 250 pounds which may be found on many a so-called dairy farm in Canada, and is indicative of the possibilities in reach of the factory patron who is really anxious to attain first rank.

It is questionable if the average yield per acre in Ontario is much more than 600 pounds of milk. If loyal, whole-hearted support is given to the local factory and to our national industry of dairying, the farm and dairy herd will be made far more productive. Great help will be derived by keeping individual records of each cow, because of the old establishment,

What Is Instinct?

Instinct is a generic term comprising all those faculties of mind which lead to the conscious performance of actions that are adoptive in character, but pursued without necessary knowledge of the relation between the means employed and the ends attained. It is hardly necessary to remark that sometimes "instinct" comes so close to "reason" that it is almost impossible to distinguish between them.—New York

Real Thrift In Derbyshire.

An admirable thrift prevails at a certain Sunday school in Derbyshire, and this is effectually demonstrated at the annual tea party. The needless expense of printing new tickets for this festivity is avoided, says the Manchester Guardian, by the simple expedient of using the same year after year. These at present employed bear the inscription:

Queen Victoria: Diamond Jubilee.
Admit one to tea.

Probably the majority of the young revelers had not been born when the tickets were printed.

KITCHEN ECONOMICS.

How to Make Palatable and Nourishing Soups From Leftovers.

The question of economy in the kitchen is easiest solved by the good cook. The woman who knows little or nothing about cooking finds it very difficult to make ends meet at times, while the woman who is either a natural born cook or has been trained to cook beautifully can always serve a dinner, even if there is nothing but scraps in the house.

To the housewife whose only knowledge of cooking is how to broil and roast meat and boil and bake potatoes and a few other vegetables—to this woman scraps seem fit for nothing but the rubbish heap. The idea that these scraps may be used would probably never occur to her, while the suggestion that not only might they be used, but that they might be made quite delicious, would seem preposterous.

One way to save the leftovers is to make them into a good soup.
When there is a good butcher's bone for a solid foundation a great many of the scraps can be put into the soup pot for flavoring. The bones left over from roasts of lambs, veal or chicken can be made into fine soups with the aid of the celery leaves and any odds and ends of vegetables which happen to be on hand. A carrot, a turnip, a few onions, peas, all may be thrown into the soup pot. They all add strength and flavor.

BY GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

"Let me help you. I mean, please don't go to so much trouble. Really I want nothing but a place to sleep to-night. This couch will do—honestly. And some one to call me at daybreak, so that I may be on my way." He looked at her and laughed quizzically. "Oh, I'm in earnest, Mr. Shaw. I would not have stopped here if it hadn't been for the storm."

"Come, now, Miss Drake, you spoil the fairy tale. You did intend to come here. It was the only place for you to go, and I'm glad of it. My only regret is that the house isn't filled with chaperons."

"Why?" she demanded with a guilty start.

"Because I could then say to you the things that are in my heart—aye, that are almost bursting from my lips. I—I can't say them now, you know," he said, and she understood his delicacy. For some minutes she sat in silence, watching him as he clumsily mixed the drinks and put the water over the alcohol blaze. Suddenly he turned to her with something like alarm in his voice. "By George, you don't suppose they'll pursue you?"

"Oh, wouldn't that be jolly? It would be like the real story book—the fairy and the ogres and all that. But," dubiously, "I'm sorely afraid they consider me rubbish. Still"—looking up encouragingly—"my brother would try to find me if he—if he knew that I was gone."

To her surprise, he whistled softly and permitted a frown of anxiety to creep over his face. "I hadn't thought of that," he observed reflectively. Then he seemed to throw off the momentary symptoms of uneasiness, adding, with a laugh: "I daresay nothing will happen. The storm would put a stop to all idea of pursuit."

"Let them pursue," she said, a stubborn light in her eyes. "I am my own mistress, Mr. Shaw. They can't take me, willy nilly, as if I were a child, you know."

"That's quite true. You don't understand," he said slowly, his back to her.

"You mean the law? Is it different from ours?"

"Not that. The—er—situation. You see, they might think it a trifle odd if they found you here—with me. Don't you understand?" He turned to her with a very serious expression. She started and sat bolt upright to stare at him comprehensively.

"You mean—it—it isn't quite—er—"

"Regular perhaps," he supplied. "Please keep your seat. I'm not the censor. I'm not even an opinion. Believe me, Miss Drake, my only thought was and is for your good."

"I see. They would believe evil of me if they knew I had come to you," she mused, turning quite cold.

"They must not find you here. Really, Miss Drake, I mean it. They would not understand. Come with me. Go down this hall quickly. It leads to the garden back of the house. There's a gun room at the end of the hall. Go in there, to your right. Here, take this! It's an electric saddle lantern. I'll head these fellows off. They shan't find you. Don't be alarmed."

She sped down the narrow hall, and he, taking time to slip into a long dressing coat, stepped out upon the porch in response to the now prolonged and impatient shouts.

"Who's there?" he shouted. The light from the windows revealed several horsemen in the roadway.

"Friends," came back through the wind. "Let us in out of the storm. It's a terror."

"I don't know you." There was a shout of laughter and some profanity.

"Oh, yes you do, Mr. Shaw. Open up and let us in. It's Dave Rank and Ed Hunter. We can't make the cabin before the rain." Shaw could see their faces now and then by the flashes of lightning, and he recognized the two woodsmen, who doubtless had been visiting sweethearts up toward Ridgely.

"Take your horses to the stable, boys, and come in," he called, laughing heartily. Then he hurried off to the gun room. He passed Mrs. Ulrich coming downstairs yawning prodigiously. He called to her to wait for him in the library.

There was no one in the gun room. The door leading to the back porch was open. With an exclamation he leaped outside and looked about him.

"Good heavens!" he cried, staggering back.

Far off in the night, a hundred yards or more up the road, leading to Grimes' cabin he saw the wobbling, uncertain flicker of a light wending its way like a will-o'-the-wisp through the night. Without a moment's hesitation and with something strangely like an oath, he rushed into the house, almost upsetting the housekeeper in his haste.

"Visitors outside. Make 'em comfortable. Back soon," he jerked out as he changed his coat with small respect for his injured arm. Then he clutched a couple of raincoats from the rack and flew out of the back door like a man suddenly gone mad.

CHAPTER VIII.

In Which a Ghost Trespasses.

THE impulse which drove Penelope out for the second time that night may be readily appreciated. Its foundation was fear. Its subordinate emotions were shame, self pity and consciousness of her real feeling toward the man of the house. The true spirit of womanhood revolted with its usual waywardness.

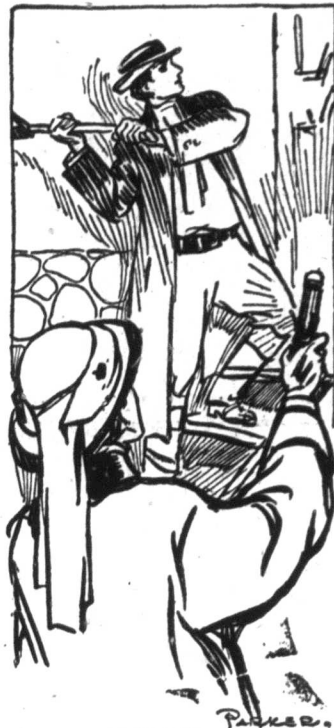

fervor that was overwhelming her with joy. Lips met again and again, and there was no thought of the night, of the feud, the escape, the Renwood ghost, or of aught save the two warm living human bodies that had found each other.

The storm, swerving with the capricious mountain winds, suddenly swept their refuge with sheets of water. Randolph Shaw threw the raincoats over his companion and both laughed hysterically at their plight, suddenly remembered.

"We can't stay here!" he shouted.

"We can't go out into it," she cried. "Where are we?"

"Renwood's," he called back. Their position was untenable. He was drenched; the raincoats protected her as she crouched back into the most remote corner. Looking about, he discovered a small door leading to the cellar. It opened the instant he touched the latch. "Come, quick," he cried, lifting her to her feet. "In here—stoop! I have the light. This is the cellar. I'll have to break down a door leading to the upper part of the house, but that will not be difficult. Here's an ax or two. Good Lord, I'm soaked!"

"Where are we going?" she gasped as he drew her across the earthen floor.

"Upstairs. It's comfortable up there." They were at the foot of the narrow stairway. She held back.

"Never! It's the—the haunted house! I can't—Randolph."

"Pooh! Don't be afraid. I'm with you, dearest."

"I know," she gulped. "But you have only one arm. Oh, I can't!"

"It's all nonsense about ghosts. I've slept here twenty times, Penelope. People have seen my light and my shadow, that's all. I'm a pretty substantial ghost."

"Oh, dear, what a disappointment! And there are no spooks, not even Mrs. Renwood?"

"Of course she may come back, dear, but you'd hardly expect a respectable lady spook to visit the place with me

Half an hour passed. Then he went to the window and looked out into storm.

"You must lie down and get so sleep," he insisted, coming back to her. "The storm's letting up, but we can leave here for quite a while. I'll sit and watch. I'm too happy to sleep. She protested, but her heavy eyes were on his allies. Soon he sat alone before the fire; she slept sound on the broad couch in the corner, a steamer across her knees. A contented smile curved his lips as he gazed reflectively into the flames. He was not thinking of Mrs. Renwood's amiable ghost.

How long she had been asleep Penelope did not know. She awoke with start, her flesh creeping. A nameless dread came over her; she felt that she was utterly alone and surrounded by horrors. It was a full minute—a shivering hour, it seemed—before she realized that she was in the room with man she loved. Her frightened eyes caught sight of him lying back in chair before the dying fire in the chimney place. The lights were low, shadows gaunt and chill.

A terrified exclamation started to her lips. Her ears again caught the sound of some one moving in the house, some alien visitor. There was no taking the sound—the distant, sepulchral laugh and the shuffling of feet, moaned at the edge of the couch, seemed.

"Randolph!" she whispered hoarsely. The man in the chair did not move. She threw off the blanket and came to a sitting posture on the side of the couch, her fingers clutching the covering with tense horror. Again the rumbling laugh and the sound of footsteps on the stairway. Like a flash she sped across the room and clutched frantically at Randolph's shoulder. He awoke with an exclamation, singing bewildered into the horrified face above.

"The—the ghost!" she gasped, eyes glued upon the hall door. He leaped to his feet and threw his arms about her.

"You've had a bad dream," he said. "What a beast I was to fall asleep. Lord, you're frightened half out of your wits. Don't tremble so, dear. There's no ghost. Every one knows."

"Listen—listen!" she whispered, gathering they stood motionless, all breathless before the fire, the glow from which threw their shadows across the room to meet the mysterious vader.

"Good Lord," he muttered, unwilling to believe his ears. "There is some one in the house. I've—I've heard sounds here before, but not like this. Distinctly to their startled ears the low, subdued murmur of a human voice and then unmistakable movement from the very depth of the ear from the grave, it seemed.

"Do you hear?" she whispered. "This dreadful place! Take me away, Randolph, dear!"

"Don't be afraid," he said, drawing her close. "There's nothing so natural about those sounds. I come from lips as much alive as I. I'll investigate." He grabbed the poker from the chimney corner, started toward the door. She followed close behind, his assurance resting in a measure the courage that temporarily deserted her.

In the hallway they paused to look over the broad porch. The storm had died away, sighing its own

"I know the kind of people your sister-in-law has at her place, Miss Drake. Their sort can see but one motive in anything. You know them, too, I dare say."

"Yes, I know them," she said uneasily. "Good heavens, what a fool I've been!" she added, starting to her feet. "I might have known they'll say all sorts of terrible things. They must not find me here. Mr. Shaw, I'm—I am so ashamed—I wonder what you are thinking of me." Her lip trembled, and there was such a pleading look in her dark eyes that he controlled himself with difficulty. It was only by imposing the severest restraint upon his susceptibilities that he was able to approach her calmly.

"I can't tell you now—not here—what I am thinking. It isn't the place. Maybe—maybe you can read my thought, Penel—Miss Drake. Look up, please. Can't you read—oh, there now—I beg your pardon! You come to me for protection and I—well, don't be too hard on me just yet. I'll find the time and place to tell you." He drew away almost as his hand was ready to clasp hers—all because her sweet eyes met his trustingly—he could have sworn lovingly.

"Just now I am a poor little reprobate," she sighed ever so miserably. "You are very good. I'll not forget."

"I'll not permit you to forget," he said eagerly.

"Isn't the housekeeper a long time in coming?" she asked quickly. He laughed contentedly.

"We've no reason to worry about her. It's the pursuers from Bazelhurst that should trouble us. Won't you tell me the whole story?" And she told him everything, sitting there beside him with a hot drink in her hand and a growing shame in her heart. It was dawning upon her with alarming force that she was exposing a hitherto unknown incentive. It was not a comfortable awakening. "And you champion me to that extent?" he cried joyously. She nodded bravely and went on.

"So here I am," she said in conclusion. "I really could not have walked to Ridgely tonight, could I?"

"I should say not."

"And there was really nowhere else to come but here?" dubiously.

"See that light over there up the mountain?" he asked, leading her to a window. "Old man Grimes and his wife live up there. They keep a light burning all night to scare Renwood's ghost away. By Jove, the storm will be upon us in a minute. I thought it had blown around us." The roll of thunder came up the valley. "Thank heaven you're safe indoors. Let them pursue if they like. I'll hide you if they come, and the servants are close mouthed."

"I don't like the way you put it, Mr. Shaw."

"Hello, hello—the house!" came a shout from the wind ridden night outside. Two hearts inside stopped beating for a second or two. She caught her breath sharply as she clasped his arm.

"They are after me!" she gasped.

CHAPTER VIII. In Which a Ghost Trespasses.

THE impulse which drove Penelope out for the second time that night may be readily appreciated. Its foundation was fear. Its subordinate emotions were shame, self pity and consciousness of her real feeling toward the man of the house. The true spirit of womanhood revolted with its usual waywardness.

She was flying down the stony road, some distance from the cottage, in the very face of the coming tornado, her heart beating like a triphammer, her eyes bent on the little light up the mountain side, before it occurred to her that this last flight was not only senseless but perilous. She even laughed at herself for a fool as she recalled the telltale hand bag on the porch and the damning presence of a Bazelhurst lantern in the hallway.

The storm which had been raging farther down the valley was at last whirling up to the hilltops, long delayed as if in gleeful anticipation of catching her alone and unprotected. The little electric saddle lamp that she carried gave out a feeble glow, scarce opening the way in the darkness more than ten feet ahead. Rough and irksome was the road, most stubborn the wall of wind. The second threat of the storm was more terrifying than the first. At any instant it was likely to break forth in all its slashing fury, and she knew not whether she went.

Even as she lost heart and was ready to turn wildly back in an effort to reach Shaw's home before the deluge the lightning flashes revealed to her the presence of a dwelling just off the road not 200 feet ahead. She stumbled forward, crying like a frightened child. There were no lights. The house looked dark, bleak, unfriendly. Farther up the hillside still gleamed the little light that was meant to keep Renwood's ghost from disturbing the slumbers of old man Grimes and his wife. She could not reach that light, that much she knew. Her feet were like hundredweights, her limbs almost devoid of power. Grimes' hut appeared to be a couple of miles away. With a last, breathless effort she turned off the road and floundered through weeds and brush until she came to what proved to be the rear of the darkened house. Long, low, rangy, it reached off into the shadows, chilling in its loneliness. There was no time left for her to climb the flight of steps and pound on the back door. The rain was swishing in the trees with a hiss that forbade delay.

She threw herself, panting and terror stricken, into the cavellike opening under the porch, her knees giving way after the supreme effort. The great storm broke as she crouched far back against the wall, her hands over her ears, her eyes tightly closed. She was safe from wind and rain, but not from the sounds of that awful conflict. The lantern lay at her feet, sending its ray out into the storm with the senseless fidelity of a beacon light.

"Penelope!" came a voice through the storm, and a second later a man plunged into the recess, crashing against the wall beside her. Something told her who it was even before he dropped beside her and threw his strong arm about her shoulders.

He was crying something into her ear—wild, incoherent words that seemed to have the power to quiet the storm. And she was responding—she knew that eager words were falling from her lips, but she never knew what they were—responding with a

"Oh, dear, what a disappointment! And there are no spooks, not even Mrs. Renwood?"

"Of course she may come back, dear, but you'd hardly expect a respectable lady spook to visit the place with me stopping here. Even ghosts have regard for conventionalities. She couldn't!"

"How much more respectable than I," Penelope murmured plaintively.

"Forgive me," he implored.

"I would, only you are so wet."

The door above was locked, but Shaw swung the ax so vigorously that any but a very strong nerved ghost must have been frightened to death once more.

"It's my house, you know," he explained from the top step. "There we are! Come up, Penelope. The fort is yours."

She followed him into the hall above. In silence they walked along the bare floors through empty rooms until at last he opened a door in what proved to be the left wing. To her surprise this room was comfortably furnished. There were ashes in the big fireplace, and there were lamps which had been used recently, for they were filled with oil.

"Here's where I read sometimes," he explained. "I have slept on that couch. Last winter I came up here to hunt. My cottage wasn't finished so I stayed here. I'll confess I've heard strange sounds—now, don't shiver! Once or twice I've been a bit nervous, but I'm still alive, you see." He lighted the wicks in the two big lamps while she looked on with chills creeping up and down her back. "I'll have a bully fire in the fireplace in just a minute."

"Let me help you," she suggested, coming quite close to him with uneasy glances over her shoulders.

Ten minutes later they were sitting before a roaring fire, quite content even though there was a suggestion of amazed ghosts lurking in the hallway behind them. No doubt old man Grimes and his wife, if they awoke in the course of the night, groaned deep prayers in response to the bright light from the windows of the haunted house. Shaw and Penelope smiled securely as they listened to the howling storm outside.

"Well, this is trespassing," she said, beaming a happy smile upon him.

"I shall be obliged to drive you out, alas," he said reflectively. "Do you recall my vow? As long as you are a Bazelhurst, I must perforce eject you."

"Not tonight!" she cried in mock dismay.

"But, as an alternative, you'll not be a Bazelhurst long," he went on eagerly, suddenly taking her hands into his, forgetful of the wounded left. "I'm going to try trespassing myself. Tomorrow I'm going to see your brother. It's regular, you know. I'm going to tell the head of your clan that you are coming over to Shaw, heart and hand."

"Oh!" she exclaimed. "You—you—no, no! You must not do that!"

"But, my dear, you are going to marry me."

"Yes—I—suppose so," she murmured helplessly. "That isn't what I meant. I mean it isn't necessary to ask Cecil. Ask me; I'll consent for him."

"No," she murmured, "not e though it is our house."

They returned to the big room softly as mice, and he left her a minute later to close the heavy wind shutters on the porch. When he turned there was a grim smile on face and his voice shook a little as spoke.

"I've heard the voices again. Th came from the laundry, I think. Renwoods were downright Yankee Penelope. I will swear that th voices are amazingly English."

CHAPTER IX.

In Which the Author Trespasses

THIS narrative has quite as m to do with the Bazelhurst s of the controversy as it with Shaw's. It is there but fair that the heroic invasion Lord Cecil should receive equal coneration from the historian. Sha conquest of one member of the fo opposing him was scarcely the re of bravery; on the other hand L Cecil's dash into the enemy's cou was the very acme of intrepidity.

"Certainly. This is Shaw's way.
Isn't it?"

"Did she say she was going to Shaw's?"

"Don't know. Evelyn told me. Hang it all, Barminster, come along. We'll never catch up to her."

"Is she riding?"

"No—horses all in."

"Do you know, we may have passed her. Deuce take it, Bazelhurst, if she's running away from us, you don't imagine she'd be such a silly fool as to stand in the road and wait for us. If she heard us she'd hide among the trees."

"But she's had an hour's start of us."
"Where ees she coming to?" asked the count, with an anxious glance upward, just in time to catch a skirmishing raindrop with his eye.

"That's just it. We don't know,"
said the duke.

"But I must find her!" cried Lord Cecil. "Think of that poor girl alone in this terrible place, storm coming up and all that. Hi, Penelope!" he shouted in his most vociferous treble. The shrieking wind replied. Then the three of them shouted her name. "Gad, she may be lost or dead or— Come on, Bar-minster. We must scour the whole demmed valley."

"He's like a wildcat tonight," said
the duke in an aside to the little Frenchman, referring to his lordship.
"Demme, I'd rather not cross him.
You seem to forget that his sister is out in all this fury."

"Mon Dieu, but I do not forget. I would give half my life to hold her in my arms thees eenstan!"

"Dem you, sir, I'd give her the other half if you dared try such a thing. We didn't fetch you along to hold her.
You've got to hold the horses, that's all."

"Diable! How dare you to speak to!"
"What are you two rowing about?"
demanded his lordship. "Come along!
We're losing time."

Away they swept, Penelope's two admirers wrathfully barking at one another about satisfaction at some future hour.

The storm burst upon them in all its fury—the maddest, wildest storm they had known in all their lives. Terrified, half drowned, blown almost from the saddles, the trio finally found shelter in the lee of a shelving cliff just off the road. While they stood there shivering, clutching the bits of their well nigh frantic horses the glimmer of lights came down to them from windows farther up the steep.
There was no mistaking the three upright oblongs of light. They were tall windows in a house, the occupants of which doubtless had been aroused at this unearthly hour by the fierceness of the storm.

"By Jove," lamented the duke, water running down his neck in floods.
"What a luxury a home is, be it ever so humble, on a night like this."

"Mon Dieu, mon Dieu," groaned the count, "how comfortab' zey look! And here? Eh bien! Qui fait trembler la terre! I am seeek! I die!"

"Penelope is out in all this," moaned his lordship.

"I am not so sure of that. Trust a woman to find a place where she can't ruin her hat. My word for it, Cecil, she's found a safe roost. I say, by Jove!" The duke was staring more intently than ever at the windows far above. "I have it! Isn't it rather odd that a house should be lighted so brilliantly at this hour of night?"

"Here is my card, m'sieur," he grated furiously.

"Demme, I know you!" roared the duke. "Keep your card, and we'll send it in to announce our arrival to Shaw."

In due course of time, after many slips and falls, they reached the front yard of the house on the hillside. It was still raining lightly. The thunder and lightning were crashing away noisily farther up the valley. Cautiously they approached through the weeds and brush.

"By Jove!" exclaimed his lordship, coming to a standstill. He turned the light of his lantern toward the front elevation of the house. "Every door and window except these three are boarded up. It can't be Shaw's home."

The Gold Dust Twins'
Philosophy

IF you have ever fumed and fussed, because of dirt and grime and rust, and said unto yourself, "Oh, dear! This household work will kill, I fear!"—then it is time that you should find some other method far more kind.

Of all the woes a housewife bears, one always fills her day with cares: The kitchen after-meal-time muss, is quite enough to make one fuss. What,
with the pots and pails and pans, the knives and forks and plates and cans, no task of man, however grim, the half as mean is handed him.

Two little willing workers aim to enter in this household game:
their job, the lessening of work, a task that neither of them shirk.

HIS narrative has quite as much to do with the Bazelhurst side of the controversy as it has with Shaw's. It is therefore air that the heroic invasion by Cecil should receive equal consid-

that a house should be lighted so bril-

"Dammed servants forgot to put out the lamps," groaned Bazelhurst without interest.

"Nonsense! I tell you what—some one has roused the house and asked shelter from the storm. Now, who could that be but Penelope?"

"By Jove, you're a ripping clever ass, after all. Barminster—a regular Sherlock Holmes. That's just it.
She's up there where the windows are. Come on. It's easy sailing now," cried his lordship, but the duke restrained him.

"Don't rush off like a fool. Whose house is it?"

"How the devil do I know? This is Shaw's land, and he hasn't been especially cordial about"—

"Aha! See what I mean? Shaw's land, to be sure. Well, hang your stupidity, don't you know we're looking at Shaw's house this very instant?
He lives there and she's arrived, dem it all. She's up there with him—dry clothes, hot drinks and all that, and we're out here catching pneumonia.
Fine, isn't it?"

"Gad! You're right! She's with that confounded villain. My God, what's to become of her?" groaned Lord Cecil, sitting down suddenly and covering his face with his hands.

"We must rescue her!" shouted the duke. "Brace up, Cecil! Don't be a baby. We'll storm the place."

"Not in zis rain!" cried the count.

"You stay in the shade and hold the horses, that's what you do," said the duke scornfully.

After many minutes there came a break in the violence of the storm and preparations were at once made for the climb up the hill. Deveau was to remain behind in charge of the horses.
With their bridle reins in his hands he cheerfully maintained this position of trust, securely sheltered from the full force of the elements. Right bravely did the duke and his lordship venture forth into the spattering rain. They had gone no more than three rods up the path when they were brought to a halt by the sounds of a prodigious struggle behind them. There was a great trampling of horses' hoofs, accompanied by the frantic shouts of the count.

"I cannot hold zem! Mon Dieu! Zey are mad! Ho! ho! Help!"

"Hold to 'em!" shouted Lord Cecil.

"Help!" shouted the count, at the same moment releasing his grip on the reins. Away tore the horses, kicking great chunks of mud over him as he tumbled aimlessly into the underbrush.
Down the road clattered the animals,
leaving the trio marooned in the wilderness. Groaning and half dead, the unfortunate count was dragged from the brush by his furious companions.
What the duke said to him was sufficient without being repeated, here or elsewhere. The count challenged him as they all resumed the march up the hill to visit the house with the lighted windows.

HORSE WISDOM.

Don't expect your breeding mare to do a hard week's work one week and not do anything the next week and do well.

Don't expect a first class colt from a second or third class stallion and a poor mare.

Don't expect a mare to be suckling a foal and carrying another one and do as much work as a good horse without a little extra care.

The heavy coated horses should be clipped just as the hair begins to start. It is a benefit to the horses, as the skin can be well cleaned and stimulated.

If the bowels of the young foal are not cleared naturally a gentle dose of castor oil should be given. It is wise sometimes to start the bowels with injections of warm water.

The horseless age will be coincident with the manless age. The automobile is all right in its place, but it will never displace the horse.

PREVENT HARNESS GALLS.

Daily Applications of Cold Water Tends to Harden Shoulders.

HOGS AND SHEEP.

Some folks predict a sheep famine in this country within a few years. This should be a hint to every farmer to put a few sheep.

If sows are to be changed from one pen to another, lead them out with a pail of slop or grain. Corn scattered on the ground is a guide is a good way.

A scare in the sheep flock worse than three days' fasting, and poor feeding foreruns failure.

At mating time the boar and sow should be in the pink of condition to produce the best results.

The more rapidly the lamb is grown the more delicious the meat.

In this era of cheap wire fences there is absolutely no excuse for narrow, ill-smelling hog houses near the house.

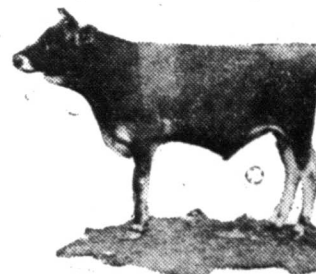

GRAIN MIXTURE FOR DAIRY CALF

The period of time from birth the calf is four weeks old has called the delicate age, and should be taken to see that it get first milk, or colostrum, which has prepared in a manner to produce laxative effect and thus put the digestive organs of the calf into proper working order.

From one to six months may be called the skimmilk age, says Professor C. Humphrey, Wisconsin Agricultural college. The whole milk should gradually be changed to skimmilk at the fifth week and the amount usually increased so that the calf be getting fifteen to eighteen pounds daily by the time it is eight or ten weeks old.

During the time a calf is twelve months of age it is very neglected. If this age occurs during the summer it is often turned to pasture and made to rustle for itself, which is a mistake. A calf is best kept in a clean stable during the year of its life, provided it is well fed.

The mixture of oats, fifty parts; wheat bran, thirty parts; cornmeal, ten parts, and oilmeal, ten parts, has been used at the University of Wisconsin for dairy calves for the past ten years.

Jersey cows will produce more profit for the feed consumed than any other breed in the world, says F. S. Delano in Rural New Yorker. They are persistent milkers, giving a good flow of rich milk and holding out well for ten or eleven months.

Smooth Out the Ruts

HOW soon will your roads, that now take the heart and soul out of every man and horse that uses them, be made into a continuous stretch of road that you and everyone in your county will be proud of?

How soon will you stop filling the ruts and mud holes with your road taxes, and build roads that will permit you to put your road taxes into more good roads?

Concrete Roads

cost no more to build than any other good road, and their upkeep expense is practically nothing, which makes them the cheapest kind of good roads.

Concrete roads benefit the farmer, consumer, merchant, newspaper, board of trade and railroad. They make for greater prosperity generally, by increasing land values and production; bringing more trade; more industries; more employment; greater traffic. They decrease the cost of marketing. All of these factors combine to decrease the cost of living.

Every citizen owes it to himself to investigate the advantages of concrete roads and learn how they will directly benefit him. This information is free for the asking. Write for it to-day to place, but it will never displace the horse.

PREVENT HARNESS GALLS.

Daily Applications of Cold Water Tends to Harden Shoulders.

Much valuable time is saved during the busy season by keeping the horses' shoulders in good condition, and the farmer is well paid for his time when looking after them. In the morning before harnessing the horse see that the shoulders and neck are clean and look to see that the collar is well cleaned off.

Where a leather bound collar is used wash it at night when it is removed from the horse's neck. Then during the day see that the mane is not allowed to work or clog under the collar.

This remedy for preventing sore shoulders is very simple and good if practiced every evening after the horse has been worked. After removing the harness, even before feeding, get a bucketful of clear, cold water

While engaged in ordinary farm work at such tasks as cultivating corn, mowing, planting corn, drilling wheat, harrowing, etc., four mules at the Missouri experiment station maintained their weights slightly better when fed corn and mixed hay than did a similar number of mules when fed oats and mixed hay. Mature mules required 3 per cent more grain and 1.4 per cent more hay to approximately maintain live weight when fed oats and mixed hay than when fed corn and mixed hay. The fine mule shown is sixteen hands high and weighed 1,500 pounds when two years old.

and take it to the stable and use a sponge or the hand and thoroughly wash the shoulder and neck, removing all sweat and loose hair which have accumulated. This is a good, simple preventive and a sure one if daily practiced.

The main cause of sores on the back underneath the harness pad consists in the latter being girthed up too tightly, so that it exerts an undue degree of pressure. This particular trouble is thus, as a rule, entirely avoidable with proper care. There is no need to tighten up the girth band in an excessive manner, and a moderately firm adjustment of the pad is all that is required.

Worms in Horses.

Horses do not suffer from stomach worms, but from intestinal worms. As often advised, give a tablespoonful night and morning of a mixture of equal parts of salt, dried sulphate of iron and sulphur in the feed. Continue for a week, then skip ten days and repeat. Omit the iron for a pregnant mare. Avoid feeding swale hay or giving contaminated drinking water.

Jersey cows will produce more profit for the feed consumed than any other breed in the world, says F. S. Delano in Rural New Yorker. They are persistent milkers, giving a good flow of rich milk and holding out well for ten or eleven months of the year. The breed as a whole, I think, will compare very well as to the production of milk for a year with their distant cousin, the black and white; also Jerseys are the handsomest cows on earth. The Jersey bull shown is a fine specimen of the breed.

more years and is a sample of what may be considered a good mixture of dairy calves.

Pure fresh water should be given calves as soon as they have learned drink.

Salt should be kept where they can have free access to it at all times.

All changes in feed should be made gradually.

Foam which forms on separated skimmed milk should never be fed, it will cause indigestion and scours or other troubles which follow.

Calves should be separated or fastened in stanchions at the time they receive their milk and fed dry grass immediately after drinking the milk which will tend to prevent the habit of sucking one another.

The stables should be cleaned regularly and kept dry.

In summer it is well to darken the stable to give protection from flies and to make it as cool as possible.

Young calves should never be exposed to a hot, scalding sun.

Watch calves and keep them free from lice.

Aim to do everything possible keep calves gaining in live weight the rate of 1.5 to 2 pounds daily.

WATER FOR LIVE STOCK.

Filtering Tanks Responsible For Many Cases of Disease.

There is too much stagnant water used in summer on the farms of the corn belt, says the Iowa Homestead. It is an every day occurrence to find water tanks covered with a green scum, from which source comes the entire supply of water for cattle, horses and hogs.

It should be sufficient to simply call attention to the risk that is run in using this kind of water. Digestion troubles invariably result from this for of pollution, and it is all brought about thoughtlessly, though in some cases may be the result of an attempt to economize in the water supply. The tank is not cleaned simply because the water must not be wasted at all hands.

A peck of lime in the bottom of ten or fifteen barrel water tank will keep the supply sweet, though it goes without saying that all tanks should be cleaned out every two or three weeks during the period of hot weather.

Diluted lime water is not injurious to any class of stock, but, on the other hand, the results of using it are often exceedingly beneficial, particularly in the case of hogs. Lime is comparatively inexpensive and can be used in this way to very great advantage.

HOGS AND SHEEP.

Some folks predict a sheep famine in this country within a few years. This should be a warning to every farmer to put on a few sheep.

If sows are to be changed from one pen to another, lead them with a pail of slop or grain. Corn scattered on the ground as guide is a good way.

A scare in the sheep flock is worse than three days' fasting. A poor feeding foreruns failure.

At mating time the boar and sow should be in the pink of condition to produce the best results.

The more rapidly the lamb is grown the more delicious the meat.

In this era of cheap woven wire fences there is absolutely no excuse for narrow, ill-smelling hog houses near the house.

AROUND THE DAIRY.

Nothing opens one's eyes to the quality of cattle he has in his dairy barn quicker than the scales and the Babcock test together.

The calves should be given fresh locks of early cut hay as soon as they will eat them.

Some folks run away from bad news—a fact that explains why some folks don't want to know how poorly their cows are doing.

Buy the best sire you can afford. Have him possess good individuality. Have his breeding of the best.

Feed the heifer that is bred carefully and liberally, remembering that she has further growth to accomplish, also the nourishment of the foetus and, still further, the preparation for the coming milking period.

WORKING YOUNG HORSES.

Care Must Be Taken Not to Overload Them in the Beginning.

Be careful and not overwork the animal at the start. It is a comparatively easy matter to overwork a young horse the first few days he is put to work, says the American Cultivator. Understand the draft of the machine he is hitched to so as not to work him beyond his capacity. Some people seem to have the impression that a young horse can do as much work as an old horse, during his first year, but this is a mistake. If possible do not allow the young animal to pull a heavy plow the first season he is put to work. If he is well matured a limited amount of heavy work will not do any harm, but the evil comes when he is worked beyond his strength.

The way a collar fits has a marked influence on the working disposition of any horse, be he young or old. It is a difficult matter to fit a collar to a young horse so it will draw properly. It is a good practice to use an old collar when starting him to work. A new collar cannot be properly adjusted to the conformation of the shoulders and in almost every case will cause chafing. Do not allow the draft on the shoulders to come too low at first. Let it be as straight as possible until the collar has adjusted itself to the conformation of the shoulders. Attention should also be paid to the length and width of the hames. Improperly adjusted hames will chafe the shoulders much more quickly than a poor fitting collar.

If the young horse is put to plowing he should be given the advantage of the other horse. Allow him to rest frequently and do not put him in long hours. If the weather is very warm, as it often is in the spring, care should be taken not to overheat his blood. Never allow him to sweat very much the first season when working, for it has a tendency to irritate and develop nervousness. Keep the animal up in good flesh. Keep a good ration of grain to encourage taking on flesh rather than falling off.

THE WHITE FROCK

An Important Part of the Little Folks' Summer Wardrobe.

SIMPLE, YET DAINTILY CHIC.

Even Fanciest Robes May Be Trimmed With Imitation Laces or Fashioned From Embroidered Flouncings—Pin Tucking Is In Favor.

White frocks for the little folks are an important part of the summer wardrobe. Those sold in the shops are often wonderful creations, much of whose beauty depends on the exquisite handwork. The fond mother who has time may duplicate many of these gowns at a moderate cost.

Those who are in search of a specially attractive model will find the little girl's dress illustrated here worth careful study. The garment may be fashioned of lawn, batiste or linen. It is adorned with both lace and embroidery. Valenciennes lace and medallions are used. A dainty blue sash is drawn around the waist. Worn with white socks and button strap slippers, this makes a charming outfit for the little tot.

Use For Embroidered Flouncings. Nothing is more satisfactory for children's white frocks than machine embroidered flouncings and bandings.

CHILD'S WHITE FROCK.

The double tunic skirt with a low placed sash is a much fancied style. And just a hint about this low placed sash. It is hard to keep such sashes from slipping down on the slender little figure unless the ribbon is run through slashes in the frock, but this fashion is not so much favored now as the handsome sash of ribbon or velvet tied loosely and apparently with carelessness around the figure. Of course there must be something to hold that

LIFE THREATENED BY KIDNEY DISEASE

His Health In A Terrible State Until He Took "Fruit-a-tives"

B. A. KELLY, Esq.

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 26th, 1913.

"About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My kidneys were not doing their work, and I was all run down in condition. I felt the need of some good remedy, and having seen 'Fruit-a-tives' advertised, I decided to try them. Their effect I found more than satisfactory. Their action was mild and the result all that could be expected."

"My kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes and I regained my old-time vitality. Today, I am as well as ever, the best health I have ever had."

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest Kidney remedy in the world. It acts on the bowels and the skin as well as the Kidneys and thereby soothes and cures any Kidney soreness.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c, or will be sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

CLOTHES HANGERS.

Their Variety and Convenience Should Banish Wrinkles From Garments.

If the closet room is small make the most of it by having a bar placed on which the hangers can be hung. Of course, the sort of hangers used must have hooks big enough to get over the bar. The bar can be bought. Sometimes it is made of nickel. A broom handle is quite satisfactory. The broom, of course, must be sawed off and the handle secured firmly at each end to the closet walls, lengthwise of the closet. A bar three feet long will accommodate at least a dozen frocks and coats on hangers.

An emergency peg for the camper can be made from a clothespin. Saw off the prongs of the pin, leaving just the knobby head—two or three inches long. Through the middle of the end of the knob drive a long, strong wire nail, longer than the piece of clothespin. Fasten this securely in a board on the wall, and you have a peg that will not tear the things hung on it.

Some dainty new clothes hangers are these: Two little clamps to clamp over the band of a skirt or over the rim of the inside of the seams of the bodice are fastened to two pieces of

Jersey cows will produce more off for the feed consumed than any other breed in the world, says S. Delano in Rural New Yorker. They are persistent milkers, giving good flow of rich milk and holding out well for ten or eleven months of the year. The breed as a whole, I think, will compare very well with the production of milk a year with their distant cousin, the black and white; also Jerseys are the handsomest cows on earth. The Jersey bull shown is a fine specimen of the breed.

WATER FOR LIVE STOCK.

ing Tanks Responsible For Many Cases of Disease.

re is too much stagnant water in summer on the farms of the belt, says the Iowa Homestead. an every day occurrence to find tanks covered with a green from which source comes the supply of water for cattle, and hogs.

ould be sufficient to simply call on to the risk that is run in using kind of water. Digestion troubles invariably result from this form of water, and it is all brought about directly, though in some cases it be the result of an attempt to nize in the water supply. The s not cleaned simply because the must not be wasted at all haz-

ted lime water is not injurious class of stock, but, on the other the results of using it are often ingly beneficial, particularly so case of hogs. Lime is comparatively inexpensive and can be used in any to very great advantage.

The first season when working, for it has a tendency to irritate and develop nervousness. Keep the animal up in good flesh. Keep a good ration of grain to encourage taking on flesh rather than falling off.

THE FRESHENING COW.

Animal Needs Particular Care at This Critical Period.

The cow should no longer be left to get along the best way she can when her calf is born. For a week or two before the little one comes she ought not to be given any heavy feed, writes E. L. Vincent in the American Cultivator. It is important that her body shall be as cool as possible, and meal and such hearty food tends to create more or less of a fever.

Then, too, it is a good thing to give the cow a dose of salts very shortly before she is to be confined. The reason for this is that, with the bowels well emptied, she is more likely to pass her ordeal without serious difficulty.

Close watch should be kept of the cow as she nears maternity, and when the time is fully come place her in a good, roomy box stall. Better do this several nights rather than to miss it. The floor of this stall ought to be well covered with straw—not long straw, for that might trip the calf up as he struggles to his feet, but short, fine straw. All that might injure cow or calf ought to be removed from the stall.

To warm the cow up and tide her over the crisis after the calf is born, a good mash of wheat bran is a fine thing. This, being laxative in its nature, starts the bowels in the right direction.

No cold water ought to be permitted for a day or two after the calf is born. Whatever water is given should have the chill taken off it. Nor should too much be given at once. A painful now and another a little later and so on until thirst is assuaged is better than to let the cow gorge herself and incur the danger of "milk fever."

Rules For Feeding Cows.

Feed one pound of grain mixture for each three or four pounds of milk produced daily.

Feed as many pounds of the grain mixture daily as the cow produces butter fat per week.

Feed all the grain mixture the cow will eat without gaining in weight.

Feed the average cow all the hay, fodder and straw she will consume without wasting it. If corn silage or roots are available feed from twenty to forty pounds daily in place of some of the roughage.

Alfalfa has a feeding value about equal to bran or oats. When it is fed the quantity of grain mixture can be cut down.

Something Like That.

"Herr Schmidt is so fat that he can't get near enough to his counter to sell goods."

"H'm! Sort of a corporation in restraint of trade."—London Answers.

Might and Mane.

Tom Hood, the punster, once described the meeting of a man and a lion, and in doing so he said, "The man ran off with all his might and the lion with all his mane."

placed upon a much fancied style. And just a hint about this low placed sash. It is hard to keep such sashes from slipping down on the slender little figure unless the ribbon is run through slashes in the frock, but this fashion is not so much favored now as the handsome sash of ribbon or velvet tied loosely and apparently with carelessness around the figure. Of course there must be something to hold that sash up.

Fine Frocks Are Costly.

When it comes to the exquisitely fine white frock, trimmed with lace and machine embroidery and set together with hand stitchery, one must pay a rather extravagant amount or make the frock at home, and such frocks mothers prefer to make, if need be, buying the cheaper play frocks in quantity in the shops.

White Paris muslin, infinitely fine and sheer and costing $1 a yard, will never "thicken up" in the laundering, but there are many grades of fine white batiste from 25 cents the yard up which are very satisfactory. Indestructible voile, sheer as gossamer, yet sturdy in character because of its beautiful weave and the excellent cotton of its threads, is another favorite.

Imitation Laces Favored.

Hems, wide tucks and pin tucking are put in with hand stitches.

The favored laces are real or imitation Irish crochet, the ideal lace for children, and shadow or fillet lace combined with entre deux of val or Normandy lace. Wide vals do not launder satisfactorily enough for children's frocks that must go to the tub every week.

For a gown of the moment simple designs are preferred to elaborate ones. After all, good taste dictates that children's garments should not be over-elaborate. For everyday wear serviceable linens are favored. Kate Greenaway and other quaint ideas are utilized by designers in search of inspiration.

RHUBARB CHARLOTTE.

Butter a pie dish, melt a dessertspoonful of sugar over the fire with a little water and pour this in. Now put a layer of bread and butter, then a layer of finely sliced rhubarb, a little more melted sugar, and repeat till dish is full. Beat up an egg and cover the top if sweet is not meant to be turned out. If intended to be turned out mix the egg with a little milk and pour in. Cover the topmost layer with a greased paper to keep it from burning and becoming too crisp. Bake for one hour, turn out, sprinkle with sugar and serve with custard.

long. Through the middle of the end of the knob drive a long, strong wire nail, longer than the piece of clothes pin. Fasten this securely in a board on the wall, and you have a peg that will not tear the things hung on it.

Some dainty new clothes hangers are these: Two little clamps to clamp over the band of a skirt or over the rim of the inside of the seams of the bodice are fastened to two pieces of ribbon, each six or eight inches long. Sometimes, to give additional strength, these ribbons are double. At the other end of each ribbon is a little bone ring which is to hang over the peg. The two rings are hung over different pegs and so hold the skirt or frock attached to the clamps in shape.

For the thin lingerie frock or waist a scented hanger is delightful. Any of the cheap hangers can be covered first with wadding in which the scent is sprinkled and then with figured lawn or with silk. A good way to cover a scented hanger is first to put on a silk or satin cover and over that to put a lawn cover which is in two parts, like two slips, to go over the two ends, fastened about the middle of the hanger with ribbons run through the hems. This slip cover can be washed to keep the hanger fresh and clean.

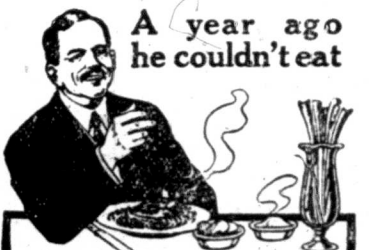

The Oldest Encyclopedia.

The most ancient encyclopedia extant is Pliny's "Natural History," in thirty-seven books and 2,493 chapters, treating of cosmography, astronomy, meteorology, geography, geology, botany, medicine, the arts and pretty nearly every other department of human thought known at the time. Pliny, who died 79 A.D., collected his work in his leisure intervals while he was engaged in public affairs. The work was a very high authority in the middle ages.

Herd at Wainwright.

The Dominion Buffalo Park at Wainwright, Alta., now contains 1,447 buffalo, 45 elk, 60 mule deer and 4 antelopes. There were 243 buffalo calves born in the park during 1913. There are 31 buffalo and 23 moose in the Rocky Mountain Park. In the Elk Island Park there are 81 buffalo and other native animals. The parks branch report that the buffalo are thriving admirably.

ENTERTAINED I. O. D. E.

Mrs. T. W. Simpson and Miss Simpson very kindly entertained U. E. L. Chapter of the I.O.D.E., at their home, Bridge St., on Tuesday last in commemoration of Victoria Day. The house was tastefully and prettily decorated with British and Canadian ensigns. There was a large attendance of members and visiting members of the order from out of town were present. The Regent, Mrs. A. T. Harshaw gave a splendid account of the 14th annual meeting of the order held in Toronto May 5th, 6th and 7th and several interesting letters from absent members were read. After the business meeting a musical program was given. Solos were most acceptably rendered by Mrs. F. E. VanLaven, Mrs. C. Bogart Daly and Miss C. Grange. The members and visitors at the conclusion of the programme were served with delicious refreshments in the tea room which was daintily decorated with lilacs and other spring flowers and silk flags. Mrs. Harshaw presided at the tea table and the Vice-Regent, Mrs. J. H. Madden, cut the ices. A pleasant hour of social intercourse brought this enjoyable function to a close.
